

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

TO MY AMERICAN KINSMEN.

I HAVE now completed, as well as I have been able, the Bolles Genealogy. It has been the labor of my leisure hours for many years; oft-times wearisome, and sometimes vexatious, attended with difficulty, perplexity, and expense; yet, on the whole, pleasant, and in many instances productive of agreeable results, valuable acquaintances, and invaluable friendships. I almost regret the completion of this self-imposed task; and to part with my manuscript, even to the printer with a view to its publication, is a sort of bereavement, not unlike that which we feel when our children leave us, to enter upon lives and homes of their own. And yet I am glad that my task is done, and that I can now offer the fruits of my labor to those who are interested like myself in rescuing from oblivion the early records and the memory of our family.

Our family record is one of which we have no reason to feel ashamed. If not many great, or famous names, adorn our annals, the pages of our history, unstained by vice and crime, are crowded with the names of the good, the just, the honest, and the true; of excellent men and worthy women, whose memory, like that of the just, is blessed. To you, my American kinsmen, who feel interested in tracing the growth of our family, I need offer no apology for having entered on my work as genealogist. And yet most men are apt to regard such work as little better than idleness. To look forward, and to care only for the future, is the almost universal practice;—to “let the dead past bury its dead,” is the prevailing principle,—of this busy and ever-hurried generation. How few of us pause to consider that our grand-children, whom we fondly love, will soon care as little for us, as we now seem to care for our grand parents, and remoter ancestors. None of us is, however, quite willing to die and be forgotten:—

“For who, to dumb forgetfulness a prey,
This pleasing, anxious, being e’er resigned,
Left the warm precincts of the cheerful day,
Nor cast one longing, lingering, look behind?”

This latent wish to be remembered is easily excited to action. In the course of my genealogical researches I wrote to one of our name for information in regard to his parentage. He seemed to stand alone and disconnected from any known branch of our tribe, but his face bore the unmistakable Bolles image and superscription. To my first letter he made no answer. His silence did not surprise me; for in many other instances I had already met with the like disappointment. I wrote again,* and my second letter was answered by the statement that my correspondent knew the name of his father, but beyond that was wholly ignorant of his ancestry. A third letter secured a promise that he would write to the far-away town of his birth, and obtain, if possible, some further information. Months passed away, and no information came. I then made a journey of thirty miles to call in person upon this dilatory correspondent. I found him at

---

* And here, once for all, I beg pardon of the multitudes of far-off cousins whom I have persecuted and bored with pertinacious inquiries, and multitudinous letters, on the unprofitable subject of “endless genealogies,”—hereby promising that I will no more disturb their patience in like manner, although I trust they will all, without delay, or further request on my part, write to me, to the care of my publishers and friends, Messrs. H. W. Dutton & Son, Boston, Mass., and furnish me with all corrections and additions that may be needful to a second and more perfect edition of the Bolles Genealogy.

home,—surrounded by his family, and, at the moment we met, holding in his arms a beautiful child of four years old, of whom he was manifestly both proud and fond. “Is it your son, Mr. Bolles,” inquired I. “No, sir,” answered he, “my grandson.” “Do you love him?” He answered by a hug and a kiss that rendered all words idle. “Do you believe he loves you?” “Of course he does! Don’t you love grand-pa, darling?” and little curly-head returned the embrace and caress. “And yet, Mr. Bolles,” said I,—“and yet, in forty years from now, if he follows your example, he will not even remember your name!” My remark struck home to his conscience and his heart. With tearful eyes he renewed his promise, and in three weeks from that time I received from him a document which enabled me to complete, by the addition of the one needful link, the genealogical chain which connected him with our common ancestor of 1608.

I have studied my own history for the purpose of ascertaining, if possible, why I have departed from the common indifference in regard to genealogical matters. At my graduation from Brown University, in 1829, President Wayland requested me to write an oration on “The Memory of the Dead.” What induced him to assign to me such a topic I can only conjecture. But its effect upon my mind I can very distinctly remember. It taught me to look backward, and to regard the past with unwonted interest. From that time I began to care especially for the surviving patriarchs of our family, and for its records and traditions. My father, Rev. Matthew Bolles, encouraged this disposition, and laid before me such memoranda as he had collected in regard to our ancestors; as did also my uncle, Judge David Bolles, of Ashford, Conn., from whom I learned much concerning the Bolles settlers of New London. In the State Department of Massachusetts I found among the Colonial records some traces of the family earlier than its settlement in Connecticut, and some indications of its English relationships. These discoveries led to a careful examination of the early records of towns, counties, colonies, and states; and to a large correspondence with men bearing our name on both sides of the Atlantic. At last I found myself fairly committed to the enterprise of becoming the Bolles genealogist; and under the influence of that pledge, I labored to perfect this work, and prepare it for the press.

The arrangement of my materials became a matter of deep anxiety and careful study. I had never seen a genealogical work which was not confused and confusing; but it seemed to me possible to overcome this difficulty, and the result of my reflection was the plan adopted in this volume. My publishers pronounce it a success, and I trust that my readers will concur in that opinion.

I will endeavor to explain this method. On the margin of the page which contains the record of any name appear also the lineal male ancestors bearing the Bolles name as far back as Joseph Bolles the Englishman who founded our family on this Continent. Suppose that the Rev. EDWIN A. BOLLES of Orangeburg, S. C., wishes to learn who were his forefathers. He looks for his own name in the Index, and finds it recorded on p. 31 of the Genealogy. Turning to p. 31, he finds, by inspection of the margin, that he is the son of ABIEL BOLLES, who was born in 1786; the grandson of JESSE BOLLES, who was born in 1749, and died in 1836; the great grandson of ENOCH BOLLES, who was born in 1715, and who died in 1800; the great-great grandson of JOHN BOLLES, who was born in 1677, and who died in 1767; the great-great-great grandson of THOMAS BOLLES, who was born in 1644, and who died in 1727: and the great-great-great-great grandson of JOSEPH BOLLES, who was born in 1608, and who died in 1678. Any other name can be traced in like manner, and thus it is easy to discover the relationship, whether direct or collateral, of every person named in this volume.

To Mr. H. R. Danforth, the printer, who has so neatly and accurately transformed my manuscript into print I feel deeply indebted, and I trust that all of my readers will unite in this feeling.

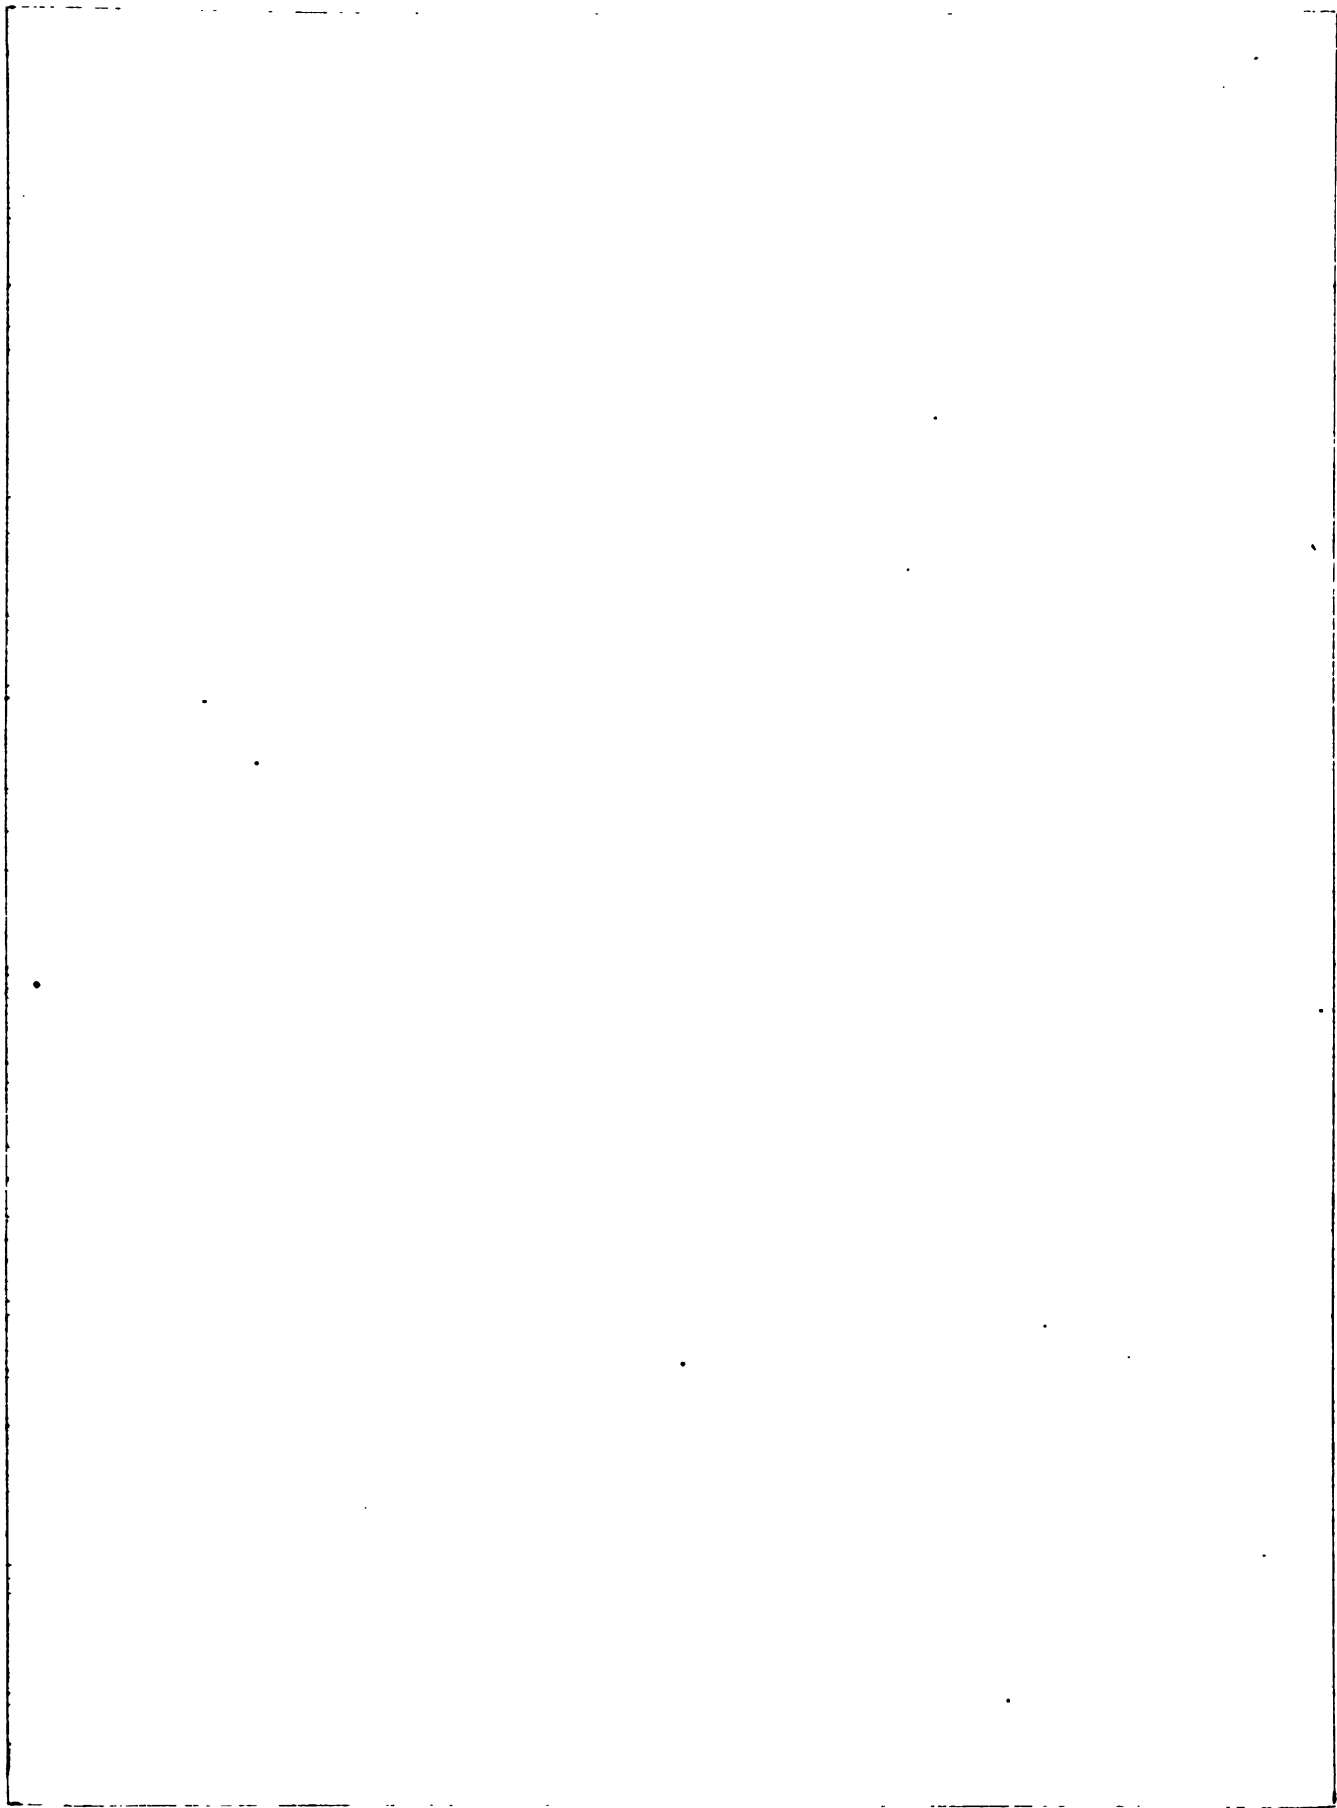

Having been occupied for the last three years and a half in the military service of the United States, I have been unable to collect and receive many of the removals, births, marriages and deaths which have occurred during that eventful period. These omissions can only be supplied in a subsequent edition of my book. Each family in which these changes have occurred will gratify me by making them known in the way already suggested. I hope that I may thus hear from all who feel interested in this work.

It is matter of regret on my part that I have been unable to establish the point of connexion between the English and American Bolleses. Perhaps some future inquiry or inquirer may be more successful. I also regret that I have not succeeded in obtaining in all cases the full and exact information which I have attempted to procure from some branches of our American family. This failure is not owing to any lack of effort on my own part. It is incident, I suppose, to every inquiry so widely extended in time and space, and I ought to wonder that my endeavors have been so well rewarded, rather than to repine, that some who have been harassed by my importunity have failed to give me all the information that I desired.

The statements entertained in this little volume may be regarded as authentic, for I have, in every case, consulted the best authorities, and have very seldom depended on anything but public records, and original family registers, or the written declarations of the parties themselves in interest.

A brief inspection of this volume will show how widely our family is diffused. From the spot of its first establishment on the coast of Maine it has spread through every state and territory of the Union, so that it would be no very difficult task for me to traverse the whole United States, finding every night a shelter beneath the roof of kinsmen who bear our ancestral name, and who would, I am sure, be glad to receive him whose letters have, for many years, made known to them the writer of this Genealogy. To their kindness I now commend this product of my long continued, and never unwilling, labor.

THE ENGLISH BOLLESES.

THE name of "BOELS" is found in the ROLL OF BATTLE ABBEY, as given by HOLLINGSHEAD. DUCHESNE, from a charter in that Abbey, gives a list of the Conquerors of England, under William of Normandy, among whose names appears the name of "Bools."—(Roll of Battle Abbey, annotated by John Bernard Burke, Esq., London, Eng., 1848.)* The names of Boll, Bol, Bole, and Bolle, occur frequently in the Domesday Book.†—(Exon. Domesday, 19, 25, 29, 37, 38, 54, 251, 453, 478; Winton Domesday, 540, 541, 559.)

"The family of Bolles, of long standing in the County of Lincoln, was resident there so early as the reign of Henry III." (A. D. 1216—1272). "Its principal seat seems to have been Bolle Hall, in Swineshead, until the close of the reign of Edward IV. (A. D. 1483,) when the elder branch of the Bolleses became settled at Hough, near Alford, in Lincolnshire, while a younger branch established itself at Gosberkirke, now Gosberton, in the same County, and from this younger branch descended the Baronets of Scampton, Lincolnshire."—(Burke's Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies.)

The following genealogy, collected in part from Illingworth,‡ in part from "Visitations of Warwickshire," Harleian MSS. Brit. Museum, Nos. 1436, 1550, and 6060, and Visitations of Lincolnshire, Harl. MSS., Nos. 1564, 1592, and partly from other sources which are therein named, will, though defective, be of some interest, viz.:

1. ALANE, or ALAINE BOLLE, of Swineshead, Lord of Swineshead and Bole Hall, in Co. of Linc. in the reign of Henry III.

2. THOMAS BOLLE of Bolle, his son, of Swineshead and Bolle Hall. He had two sons, William and John. William, the eldest, married, had one child, Cecilia Bolle, on whose death, in the sixth year of Edward III., the family estates descended to his younger brother—

3. JOHN BOLLE of Bolle Hall and Swineshead, who was then 60 years old. He had two sons, William and Godfrey; William, the oldest, had but one child, Mabell. Upon her death, and the death of her father, the estates descended to the younger brother—

4. GODFREY BOLLE of Swineshead. William was Escheator of the County of Lincoln, and Godfrey appears to have had but one child. On Godfrey's death the estate descended to—

5. JOHN BOLLE, his son, who married Joane, dau. and heir of Walter Godard of Moulton; and on his death to his son—

6. RANULPH BOLLE of Swineshead, who m. Catherine Pulvertoft, dau. and heir of John Pulvertoft of Bromfield, Co. of Lincoln. He died before 20th Richard II. His wife endowed a chantry in St. Mary's, Algarkirke, Lincolnshire. He appears to have had but one child, viz.—

7. JOHN BOLLE, Esq., of Swineshead, who m. Mary, dau. and heir of Wm. Angevine, by Elinor, dau. and heir of Wm. Alderbie. Then followed his son—

8. WILLIAM BOLLE of Swineshead, Esq., who m. Anne, dau. of John Kyme of Friskney, and was succeeded by his son—

9. JOHN BOLLE, Esq., of Swineshead and Haugh, Sheriff of Lincoln, 16 and 17 Edward IV. (1477), who m. Catherine, dau. and heir of Richard Haugh of Haugh, (Hough). He had eight children, viz., RICHARD, ROBERT, WILLIAM, JOHN, THOMAS, GODFREY, ARNULPH, and JOAN. From Richard, the eldest, descended the Bolleses of Hough and of Thorpe, and from Godfrey, the sixth, descended the Bolleses of Newbold, Gosberton, and Scampton.§ Burke, in his "COMMONERS,

* "The names of every person of any consideration" (of those who fought under the banners of William the Conqueror in his conquest of England,) "were written upon a roll, and hung up in the Abbey of Battle." "As to the orthography it is of little consequence; the spelling of names was at that time, and for many ages afterwards, not fixed, every one writing them as they pleased." "Grafton, in his Chronicle, has given very many names" "from out of John Harding's Chronicle" and other sources. "Hollingshead mentions upward of six hundred; Stow, in his Chronicle, only four hundred and seven. Thomas Scriven, (copied by Fuller, in his Church History,) mentions still fewer. Fox, (Acts and Monuments,) gives a list of William First's officers and great men—valuable because it gives the initials of the Christian names. Dugdale (Sir William) accuses the monks of Battle of flattery, in inserting names of persons whose ancestors never were at the Conquest. Guiliam Tayleur, a Norman historian, who could have had no communication with the monks of Battle, has published the muster roll that was called over after the battle of Hastings, to know who had fallen. Fox, Hollingshead, and Stow, have each pretended to give a transcript of this muster roll, but they are so unlike that much reliance cannot be placed on any of them. Defective as these collections of names are, they are the only ones that can be had, except what may be learned from Domesday Book, and a French author who has enumerated such places in Normandy as have given names to families which have settled in England.—(Noble's History of the College of Arms, Prelim. Dis., pp. 5, 6.)

† Lower, in his Dictionary of the Family Names of the United Kingdom, (London, 1860,) says that "Domesday presents us with two tenants in chief called Bolle and Bollo, the former in Hants and the latter in Dorset." Ferguson, ("English Surnames," London, 1858,) derives the name from the Norse word bauli, a bull. De Bolle is found in the "Rotuli Hundredorum."

‡ "Topographical Account of the Parish of Scampton, with Anecdotes of the Family of Bolles, by Rev. Cayley Illingworth, London, 1810." This writer states that in "the reign of Edward II., (1307—1327,) the Bolles family were tenants in capite of the Crown, of lands in Coningsby, and at the same time had large possessions at Swineshead, near Boston, which they held of the Earl of Richmond, by Knight service."

§ Illingworth states that Boll Hall in Swineshead, now called Ball Hall, seems to have been their principal residence, till the close of the reign of Edward IV., when the elder branch became settled at Hough, (Laugh, Hagh, Haw,) near Alford, and at Thorpe Hall, near Louth, in Lincolnshire, and one of the younger branches at Gosberkirke, now Go-berton, in that county. The family had previously represented the Co. of Lincoln several times in Parliament (as in 29, 36, and 38, Edward III., 1356, 1363, and 1365,) and had filled the offices of Sheriff and Escheator of Lincoln Co. We find them erecting chantries, and bestowing lands to charitable uses at Algarkirke, Wygtoft, and other places in Lincolnshire, a clear indication of the wealth of the family in those early times.—(Illingworth.) Swineshead, or Swinstead, is 7 miles from Boston in Lincolnshire, and 115 miles from London. The sea formerly flowed up to this place, and there was a harbor near where the market place now stands. In 1134 a Cistercian Monastery was founded there, by Robert de Greslei, whose revenue at its dissolution was over £175 per annum. The Monastery has disappeared. A little southwest of the town are the remains of a Danish encampment, of which a picture may be found in Thompson's Boston (1856) p. 22, copied from the London "Illustrated News." The population of the town is over 2000. King John first rested here after the loss of his baggage in crossing the Lincolnshire marshes, during his military progress from Lynn to Sleaford, a short time before his death. Newbold is in Leicestershire.

&c.," states that the third son, William, is represented by Charles Oldfield Bolles of North Aston, Oxford Co. Illingworth says that, in 1810, the lineal descendants from that branch of the family which settled at Hough, were Lieut. Col. Thomas James Birch, of His Majesty's 1st Regiment Life Guards, and of Thorpe Hall; Lady Ingilby Amcotts, wife of Sir John Ingilby, Baronet; William Bosville of Ravenfield Park, in the Co. of York, Esq., and the Rev. Leonard Towne of Utterby, in the Co. of Lincoln. Burke, "Ext. and Dormt. Baronetcies," says, "The two sisters were Elizabeth and Sarah. ELIZABETH m. Rev. Thomas Bosville, B. D., Rector of Ufford, and had three daughters. SARAH m. Henry Eyre, Esq., of Bramley Hall, and had one dau. and heir. The children of Elizabeth and Thomas Bosville were—1, MARGARET, b. 1710, m. 1734, to James Birch, Esq., of Coventry; 2d, ELIZABETH, who m. first, Alexander Emerson, Esq., of West Retford, Notts, and second, Rev. Stephen Ashton, vicar of Louth; 3d, BRIDGET, who m. Thomas Bosville, Esq., of Braithwell and of Ulverscroft Abbey, and had two sons who d. without issue. The children of Margaret and James Birch were 1st, Thomas of Thorpe Hall, whose son, Lt. Col. Thomas James Birch, of the 1st Life Guards, assumed the name of Bosville, on inheriting Ravenfield Park, in Yorkshire, and d. without issue, April 22, 1829; 2d, James, Rector of Wishford, Wilts, who d. 1823, aged 84; and 3d, Elizabeth, who m. Robert Lee, Esq., of Louth and Littlecoates, in Lincolnshire, and was grandfather of the present (Sir) Thomas Bosville Bosville of Ravenfield Park, (and of the Charles Lee mentioned in note to No. 14, post.) The only child of Sarah and Henry Eyre, (Margaret,) m. in 1726, William Spencer, Esq., and was gr. grandmother of the present Rev. William Packenham Spencer of Bramley Grange.—(Burke's Ext. and Dormt. Baronetcies, &c.)

10. RICHARD BOLLE of Hough (in right of his mother) and of Gosberton, m. Isabel, sister and heir of Sir Richard Nanfant of Cornwall, Knight.

11. RICHARD BOLLE of Gosberton and Hough, their son and heir, m. Marion, dau. of John Fitzwilliam, and heir of Mablethorpe, and had several children, viz., John, who d. without issue; George, who m. Catherine, dau. of Bryan Newcombe, of whose family I have no trace; and

12. RICHARD BOLLE of Gosberton and Hough, who was m. three times, and d. in his 85th year, Feb. 6, 1591. The following is his epitaph yet visible and legible on a brass plate in the south aisle of the Church of St. Butolph, Boston, England, copied recently by my brother, James G. Bolles, Esq., of Hartford, Conn., viz., "Here lyeth Richard Bolle of Hough in the County of Lincoln, Esquire, son and heir of Richard Bolle of Hough, Esq., and of Maria his wife, dau. and heir of John Fitzwilliam of Mablethorpe, Esq. He had issue by Jane, his first wife, daughter to Sir Wm. Skipwith, of Ormsbie, Kt., Charles Bolle, his son and heir apparent who died in his life time; Maria, married to Anthonie Tournie of Cavenbie, Esq.; Ann, married to Leonard Cracroft, Gent; Gertrude, married to Leonard Kirkham of Kelle, Gent.; and Ursula, married to John Kirkham, Gent. He had no issue by Ann, his second wife. He had issue by Margaret, his third wife, Richard,* John, and Jane. He died on the 6th day of February, 1591, and in ye 85th year of his age, after he had sundry times had charge in France, Scotland, and this realm, and had been twice Sheriff in the said County." His coat of arms is also there, "a most brilliant coat of arms on a brass plate with real metals and tinctures enamelled, as old as the reign of Elizabeth," containing sixteen quarterings.—(Thompson's Boston.)

13. CHARLES BOLLES, the above named, married four times,† as appears from the inscription on his monument in the chancel of the church at Hough. By his second wife, Bridget Fane, dau. of Sir George Fane, Knight, of Badsill, Kent, he had a dau. KATHERINE, who m. Edward Carr, Esq., and a son JOHN, who became

14. SIR JOHN BOLLE of Thorpe Hall, born 1560–1; d. Nov. 3, 1606, in the 46th year of his age.‡ He m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Edward Waters of Lynn, in the Co. of Norfolk, and had eight children, viz., Sir Charles, his oldest son and heir, (see below, 15); Elizabeth, who m. Geo. Cracroft; Mary; John, who m. Jane, dau. of John Bradley, Esq., of Louth; Edward; Martha; Catherine; and Bridget. Illingworth, from whom I quote as above, informs us that Sir John Bolle lived in the reign of Elizabeth and James, and was distinguished alike by his learning and military exploits. For his gallant conduct in the Expedition of 1596 against Cadiz, he was knighted by Queen Elizabeth. During the administration of the Earl of Essex he served with distinction in Ireland, commanded at the taking of the castles of Donolong and Lifford, and was appointed Governor of Kinsale. His sons, Charles, John, and Edward, became conspicuous and honorable men. His portrait, by Zucharo, still exists, and an engraving of it may be seen in Illingworth. He is, undoubtedly, the hero of that beautiful ballad, "The Spanish Lady's Love," which forms No. XXIII. of Bishop Percy's "Relics of Ancient English Poetry, Second Series."§

15. SIR CHARLES BOLLES, son of Sir John, succeeded his illustrious father in the estates of Hough, Maltby, and Thorpe Hall. He was knighted by King James, soon after coming of age, in 1616. He was an active partizan of Charles I., and from his tenants raised and armed a regiment of infantry, which was commanded by his brother, Col. John Bolles. He m. twice, viz., 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Humphrey Stafford, Esq., of Blatherwick, in the Co. of Northampton, by whom he had nine children, viz., John, Charles, who died in infancy, Elizabeth, Anne, Mary, Catherine, Mary, Catherine, Jane; 2d, Anne —, by whom he had three children, Charles, Edward, and Martha. Most of his offspring died in

* This may be the Richard who, in 1591, at Boston, Eng., paid £20 towards a subsidy levied in that year, and who, about 1603, was assessed £40 in a county assessment wherein he is described as of Boston.—(Thompson's Boston, pp. 76, 197.)

† 1st, KATHERINE, dau. of Edward Dimock, Esq., of Scrivelsby; 2d, (as above); 3d, MARIA, dau. of Sir Thomas Powtrall of West Hallam in the Co. of Derby, Kt.; 4th, ANNA, dau. of Sir Thomas Dimmock of Friskney, Kt. By his first and fourth wives he had no children. By his third wife he had a dau. Elizabeth, who, according to one authority, m. Sir Thomas Gilby, Kt., of Stanton in the Hole, (Inscription in Hough Church, quoted by Illingworth, p. 54.) and, according to another, (Thompson's Boston, 2d ed., p. 197,) m. Thomas Elsey, and by their gr. dau. Sarah, who m. Richard Wright, became the ancestor of the present Rev. Thomas Bailey Wright, Rector of Wrangle, near Boston.

‡ The date of his death is from Thompson's Boston.

§ See Lady Dalmeny's illustrated edition of this Ballad, London, folio, 1846. The air to which this ballad was originally set has been preserved, see the Skene Collection, No. LXIII., p. 242, and Daune's Ancient Scottish Melodies, 4to. 1838, and also, p. 351. Consult London Quart. Rev., Oct. 1846, Vol. 78, p. 324, and Edinburgh Rev., April, 1846. A writer in the English Notes and Queries, Vol. X., p. 273, says, "I have heard of the portrait of the Spanish Lady at Rev. T. B. Wright's, Wrangle." In Vol. IX., of the same periodical, and in the London Times of May 1, 1846, is a letter from Charles Lee, brother of Sir Thomas Bosville Bosville of Ravensfield Park, Yorkshire, written at Coldrey, Hants, which asserts that Sir John Bolle, the writer's ancestor, was the hero of the ballad, and that the necklace given to him by the Spanish lady is still extant, in the possession of a member of the writer's family at Coldrey.

his life-time. He was slain at Winceby, fighting as a royalist, in Oct. 1643.—(Thompson's Boston, 2d ed., 197.) His portrait, by Vandyke, is copied in Illingworth. Col. John Bolles, his brother, fought bravely at Edgehill and other places, and was killed while defending Alton, 1643, Dec. 20.—(Clarendon's Rebellion, Book VIII.; Parliamentary Weekly Accounts of Dec. 20, 1643; Illingworth.) Milner, (Antiq. of Winchester, Vol. 2, p. 75,) states that when King Charles heard of his death, he eulogized him as one of the best commanders in the kingdom.* Of the four sons born to Sir John, Charles by the first wife died in infancy, Charles by the second wife died without issue, and Edward Bolles, the youngest, established himself in London, and d. 1680, aged 77. He was buried in Louth Church, where an inscription tells us that he bequeathed £600 to be invested in land for the benefit of the poor. Illingworth states that the bequest was judiciously invested and has in its benefits kept pace with the times.

16. JOHN BOLLES, Esq., of Haugh and Thorpe Hall, born 1630, d. 1679, married Ursula Bradley, dau. of George Bradley, Esq., of Louth, by whom he had two sons, John, and Edward. Edward d. in infancy; the other son—

17. JOHN BOLLES, Esq., born 1653, d. 1732, without male issue, aged 79, leaving two daughters.

Thus, in the 17th generation, seems to have been extinguished the oldest male line of this ancient family.

I now return to the younger branch, beginning with—

10. GODFREY BOLLE of Newbold, in Leicestershire, son of John, and brother of Richard, (see 9 and 10). He m. Alice, dau. of Humphrey Smallpage of Hockering, or Pickering, County of Norfolk, and had the following children, viz., Thomas, John, and Rankyn. JOHN m. and left issue, and that is all I know of him. RANKYN died without issue. The estate descended to the remaining son—

11. THOMAS BOLLES of Newbold, in Leicestershire, and Gosberkirke, now Gosberton, in Lincolnshire, who m. Jane, dau. of Geo. Winter of Worthington, Leicester Co., and had sons, Robert and George. Robert d. without issue. George became—

12. SIR GEORGE BOLLES, born in 1538, in the reign of Henry VIII. We find him in London in 1598; Alderman in 1607; Sheriff in 1608; and Lord Mayor in 1618; Knighted, May 30, 1618; (see Stowe's London, ed. 1618, dedicated by "A. M., the editor, (Stowe himself was dead,) "to the Right Honorable Ge<sup>r</sup>. Bolles, Ld. Major." See, also, Allen's London, Vol. 2, and Hall's Chronicles, end of King James). Oldmixon, in his "History of the Stuarts," relates that when King James removed from one place to another, his carriages "commonly set out on a Sunday," and that, on one occasion, as they were thus passing through London on the Sabbath day, "with great clatter and noise," in time of divine service, Sir George Bolles, the mayor, caused them to be stopped, and would not allow them to proceed until a warrant for their passage was procured under the sign manual of the king, His Majesty remarking that he had supposed "there had been no more kings in England but himself." Sir George Bolles m. Jane, dau. of Sir John Hart, through whom, in 1603, he inherited the manor and lands of Scampton, near Boston, in Lincolnshire. He d. Sept. 1, 1621, and was buried in the family vault in the church of St. Swithin, London. He was succeeded by his son—

13. SIR JOHN BOLLES, who was born in 1581, and m. Catherine, dau. of Thomas Conyers, (Coniers,) Esq., of Brodham, Nottingham Co. He was knighted in 1627, and created a Baronet, July 24, 1628.—(Illingworth; Harl. MSS., No. 2145, p. 42; Catalogue of Baronets prefixed to Baker's Chronicles of the Kings of England, continued by Phillips, No. 212.) He d. March 8, 1648, aged 67. He had six children, four of whom, according to Illingworth, d. unmarried in his life time. Illingworth quotes from Stowe's London, edition of 1633, an epitaph, in Latin, from a tablet in St. Swithin's Church, which states that George, the oldest son of Sir John Bolles of Scampton, d. in his twentieth year, in 1632.† The death of Sir John Bolles occurred March 8, 1648, when he was 67 years old. He was buried in the chancel on the north side of the altar in Scampton Church, where lie the remains of his wife and not less than twelve of their descendants. He was succeeded in the title and estates by his son—

14. SIR ROBERT BOLLES, Baronet, who was born in April, 1619, and m. Mary, dau. of Sir Edward Hussey, Kt., of Hunnington, in the Co. of Lincoln, in Oct. 1637. Sir Robert was a distinguished patron of the fine arts, and lived much among literary men. In 1652, Shirley dedicated to him a play, ("The Imposture"). In 1655, Rawlins executed a medal of him and his wife, mentioned in Walpole's Anecdotes of Painters, &c., 3d edit., Vol. 2, p. 258, and copied in Illingworth. In 1660, he was one of the Grand Jury for trying the Regicides at Hicks's Hall. In 1661, he was member of Parliament for the city of Lincoln. He d. Aug. 1663, aged 44, leaving two sons, (John and Robert,) and five daughters, each of whom inherited a handsome estate. He was buried in St. Swithin's, by torch light. He bequeathed the manor of Scampton to his son—

15. SIR JOHN BOLLES, who m. twice, viz., 1st, in Nov. 1663, Elizabeth, dau. of John Pinsent, Esq., by whom he had a dau. Mary, who d. in his life time; and 2d, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Vincent Corbet, by whom he had four children, viz., John, Henry, Sarah, and Elizabeth. Henry and Elizabeth died in their father's life time.

16. SIR JOHN BOLLES, only surviving son of Sir John, succeeded his father, and lived in great splendor at Scampton. He represented the city of Lincoln in five successive Parliaments. He d. single, Dec. 1714, and was buried in St. Swithin's Church. With him expired the title. In default of male heirs the estate descended to his sister Sarah, who d. single, Nov. 7, 1746, at the age of 80. She suffered the manor house to decay. In 1810, little of it remained except a splendid stone gateway to bear witness of its former grandeur. On her death, the manor and estate of Scampton passed to her three co-heirs, descendants of the daughters of Sir Robert, the third Baron Bolles of Scampton, viz., Sir Cyril Wych, Bart., John

* A monumental inscription in Winchester Cathedral, adjoining Bishop Morley's monument, commemorates his virtues, though by a strange blunder his name and the date of his death are both mis-stated.—(Milner.) The inscription is said to be engraved on a copper plate, affixed to one of the pillars in the vicinity of Bishop Hoadley's tomb.—(English "Notes and Queries," July 26, 1856). It was composed and placed in the Cathedral, in 1689, by Richard Boles, Rector of Whitnash Church. Walter Boles was Mayor of Winchester in 1369 and 1387. Among the Fellows of Winchester College, in 1773, was Rev. Mr. Boles.—(Hist. and Antiq. of Winchester, Vol. 2, pp. 283, 286.)

† The Bolles pedigree at the end of Illingworth's very interesting volume, gives the names, &c., of Sir John's children as follows, viz., 1, George, died 1632, æt. 20; 2, Conyers, b. Nov. 28, 1614, d. July, 1616; 3, Robert, born 1619, who inherited the title and estates; 4, Isabella, d. 1683; 5, Jane, d. 1629; 6, Elizabeth, d. 1663.—See Note A, on p. viii.

Washer, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, and Mrs. Mary Turton, wife of John Turton, M. D., of Birmingham.—(Burke's Ex. and Dor. Baron.)

While speaking of the Bolleses of Scampton it may be mentioned that the Catalogue of Rectors of that parish contains, according to Illingworth, the following entries, viz.: A. D. "1416. Benedict de Peke, vicar of Islom, exchanged with Gaunstede" (of Scampton). "Anno incerto, THOMAS BOLE." "1464, Waynefleet, Abbot of Kirkstead, death of BOLES."

This catalogue, the early entries in which were compiled from "the books of institutions" at Lincoln, contains, between the years 1614 and 1663, twenty-five entries of births, baptisms, marriages, and burials, of the Bolles family. In a large majority of instances the name is spelled BOLLES; but in several cases this is interchanged with BOWLES, in recording the name of the same individual. On the communion service of this church, a silver chalice and plate, is this inscription, "St. J<sup>n</sup>. BOLLES, Bart., to the Church of Scampton, 1692." But on the pulpit cloth (of Genoa velvet, deeply fringed with gold,) his name, according to Illingworth, is embroidered as "Sir John BOLES." On the tomb-stones of the Sir John Bolles who died 1648, and of Lady Katherine, his wife, who died 1644, the name is spelled "BOLLES;" so, also, in the epitaph of their son George. The different coats of arms, &c., of the English family, from Burke's Encyc. of Heraldry, Berry's Encycl. Heraldica, and other works on heraldry, exhibit the original unity of the Bolleses, Bowleses, &c., as well as the wide diffusion of the family throughout England.

I have thus traced, as fully as I could, the oldest and the youngest of the six sons of John Bolle, Sheriff of Lincoln, 1477. The male issue of William, his third son, as already stated, is represented by Charles O. Bowles, Esq., of North Aston, Oxford Co., but I have not the intermediate genealogical links, nor have I the lineage of Robert, John, and Thomas, the three other sons of that distinguished ancestor. Perhaps one of these three is the ancestor of John Bolles of Wallington, who, in the 21st year of Henry VIII. (1530) was Sheriff of the County of Herts, and who m. Anne, dau. of John Davenish of Weston, in that Co.—(Clutterbuck's Hist. of Herts, Harl. MSS., 1504, p. 9.) This John Bolles of Wallington, had at least seven children, one (Elizabeth) m. William Chisell; another (Dorothy) m. Sir Ralph Rowlett, Kt.; a third (Anne) was m. twice, her first husband was John Burgoyne, and her second was Sir Robert Catlin, Kt.; Lord Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench, 1574, (See Clutterbuck's Hist. of Herts,) but Lord Campbell (Lives of the Chief Justices) says that Lady Catlin was a dau. of Thomas Bowles, Esq., and had an only dau. and heir, who m. Sir John Spencer of Althorpe, and that from them are descended the Dukes of Marlborough. Thomas was her brother, not her father.* A fourth child (George Bolles of Wallingford) m. Alice, dau. of Richard Fitz Hugh, and had six children—two sons, (Francis and Thomas,) and four daus., (Ellen, Lucy, Anne, and Ursula). A fifth (Nicholas) d. without issue. Of Thomas I have no trace.

Richard, the oldest son of John Bolles of Wallington, was Sheriff of Herts and Essex. He was father of Thomas Bolles of Wallington, who m. Mary, dau. of Sir Ralph Sadler of Standon, Kt. banneret, and was Sheriff of Herts in 1576, (18th Elizabeth). He had numerous children, viz., Thomas, Richard, Ralph, Maria, Ellen, and Jane.

Ralph d. in infancy. Richard m. —, dau. of — Bawtry of Cambridgeshire; June m. Edward Wilsbuy; Ellen m. Richard Baker; Maria (Mary) m. Robert Hayes of Enfield; and her brother. Thomas Bolles, Esq., Sheriff of Herts, 43d Elizabeth, (1601) m. Mary, dau. of Robert Hayes of Enfield, and had several children, viz., Lewis, Thomas, Charles, John, Theophilus.

In the days of John Milton there was a Bishop of Rochester whose name was JOHN BOLLES. One of his descendants was the celebrated John Bolles, born 1725, educated at Oxford, and called, because of his famous edition of Don Quixote, "Don Bolles." He was very learned, and d. 1788.

In the Transactions of the American Antiquarian Society, Vol. 4, I find a narrative of a voyage to Spitzbergen, in the year 1613, accompanied by a map, on which appears, on the westerly coast of that island, "Boules's Bay."

In the "Minutes of the Council for New England" are the following entries, viz., "1622, July 12. Whether Will Cross and Abr<sup>m</sup> Jennings, Merchants, be content to enter into the grand patent election of Will. Boles, Clerk of the Council."

1622, Nov. 16. "William Boles to be Clerk, with a salary of 20l. per ann."—(Calendar of State Papers, Colonial, 1574—1660, Vol. 2, pp. 31, 34.)

In the "Biog. Universelle," Vol. 3, is a sketch of William Bowles, naturalist, who was born in Ireland, 1720, and died 1790. He went to Paris in 1752; was a friend of the learned Don Antonio de Ulloa, published a work on the Natural History of Spain, contributed to the Royal Society a paper on the mines of Germany and Spain, &c., &c., &c.

In Vaperau Dict. Univers. des Contemporains, Paris, 1858, is a notice of Sir George Bowles, a distinguished English General, born at Heale-House, Wilts; Envoy to Spain, 1808—1814; served at Waterloo; commanded troops in Canada, 1835; Master of the Queen's Household, 1845—51; Lieut. Governor of the Tower; Knight Commander of the Bath, Lieut. General, &c., &c.

* In 1593, Robert Bowlle of London published puritanical works deemed to be seditious.—(Strype's Whitgift, B. IV., c. 11.)

NOTE A, p. vii. This pedigree from Illingworth, taken in connection with the epitaph of George Bolles, oldest son of Sir John Bolles (No. 13, p. vii.) exposes the error of a family tradition of the American Bolleses, that Joseph Bolles of Wells, Maine, (See Bolles Genealogy, Chap. I., Sect. 1., p. 1) was the third son of this Sir John Bolles of Scampton. This erroneous tradition grew out of an entry in the family Bible of that Col. Charles Frost who married Mary Bolles, the daughter of Joseph Bolles of Wells, (post, p. 1). That entry describes Mrs. Frost as Mary, dau. of Joseph Bolles of Wells, third son of Sir John Bolles of Scampton, Baronknight." My brother-in-law, Major Gen. John A. Dix, examined that entry, and describes it as interlined in a different hand from the rest of the record of Mrs. Frost's marriage. The mis-spelling of Scampton casts doubt on its accuracy; and when we remember that Joseph Bolles, in his own hand, on the Wells town record, gives the year of his birth as 1608, while the epitaph of George, the oldest son of Sir John, proves that George was born in 1612, we see that Joseph could not have been the third son, while the pedigree in Illingworth shows that he could not have been the child of Sir John at all.

I have not been able to trace the English lineage of our ancestor, Joseph Bolles of Wells, Maine.

BOLLES' GENEALOGY.

CHAPTER I.

SECTION I. JOSEPH BOLLES, 1608—1678.

The first of our name who came from England to America was JOSEPH BOLLES, the precise period and place of whose arrival, I have been unable to ascertain. In the year 1640, the earliest date which I can find connected with his name, he was engaged in trade at Winter Harbor, near the mouth of the Saco river, in the then Province of Maine.—(Folsom's History of Biddeford and Saco, p. 55.) The records of the General Court of Maine for 1640 contain this passage:—"Joseph Bolles hath presented to the Grand Inquest, Thomas Heard, for being drunk, . . . and threatening him with many violent words to break open the store. He (the delinquent) further declareth that he received his drink at the house of W<sup>m</sup> Scadlock."

Mr. Bolles afterwards removed to Wells, Me., (Id. p. 58,) where he held the office of Town Clerk from 1654 to 1664, during which period his dwelling-house, and the first volume of the town records, were burned by Indians.—(York County Register, Vol. XII, p. 259.)

The following copy of his family record is from his autograph in the Wells town records:

The ages of Mr Jos: Bolles was borne in Feb: 1608
And Mary Bolles his wife in March 1624
Mary Bolles their daugh<sup>r</sup> borne 7 Augst 1641
Tho: Bolles his oldest sonne first Desemb 1644
Sam: Bolles was borne 12 March 1646
Hannah Bolles Noveb 25 was borne 1649
Eliz: Bolles was borne 15 day Janu: 1652
Joseph Bolles was borne in March 15th 1654
Sara Bolles was borne 20 Janury 1657
Mercy Bolles was borne 11 Agstt 1661

I have been led to conjecture that Mrs. Bolles was a daughter of Morgan Howell, who owned land at Cape Porpoise, and who devised and bequeathed to Mrs. B. and her children all his estate and property, and appointed her Executrix of his will, Nov. 17, 1666.—(York Co. Reg., II. 120, and IV. 3 and 49.)

Mr. Bolles died at Wells, Me., in the Fall of 1678. His will bears date Sept. 18th, of that year, and was admitted to probate in November, 1678. At the end of this Section I insert the Will, and the Inventory of his real and personal property. His whole family survived him, and Mrs. Bolles was living in 1684; after which I know nothing of her history. He was a large land owner. At his death his real estate, reduced already by divers grants to his children, was appraised at £530. Various circumstances show that he was a man of high character and standing, universally respected and honored. In July, 1653, Commissioners of Massachusetts held a Court at Wells, and appointed him "Clerk of the Writts, with power to grant Warrants, Attachments," &c.—(Mass. Colonial Records, Vol. IV. pp. 142-3.) In 1660, the King having restored to the Gorges family what had been usurped by Massachusetts, Archdale, Gorges's Agent, came to Maine with commissions for various persons, and among others Mr. Bolles, as Counsellors and Magistrates. In 1664, Sir Ferdinando Gorges, grandson of the original Patentee, commissioned "Sundry of his loving friends," including Mr. Bolles, "as Deputies and Commissioners for the government of the Province of Maine."—(York Co. Reg., XV. 256.) Of Mr. Bolles's children, Mary, the first born, married Col. Charles Frost of Kittery, by whom she had a large family. The date of her marriage is not given. Her father's will, however, shows that she was married before its date, Sept. 18, 1678. She died Nov. 11, 1704. Col. Frost was one of the most distinguished of the early inhabitants of Maine.—(Folsom's Biddeford and Saco, pp. 146, 159, 195; Dr. Usher Parsons's Geneal. of the Frost Family; New Eng. Hist. and Gen. Reg., 1849, p. 261; The Frost Family Bible.) Eliza, or Elizabeth, married a Mr. Locke. Mercy seems never to have married. Hannah and Sarah married; the one (which, does not appear), a Mr. Becke, and the other a Mr. Chadbourne. I cannot trace any of the married daughters except Mrs. Frost. Of Mr. Bolles's sons, Joseph married Mary —, and died at Wells, Sept. 25, 1683. His wife survived him, and administered upon his estate. They had no child. Samuel, the second son, married Mary Dyer, daughter of William Dyer of Sheepscot, Me., and removed to Rochester, Mass. (See his Genealogy hereafter, Chap. II.) Thomas, the oldest son, removed from Wells, Me., to New London, Conn., as related in Section II.

In all cases where I find his name written by his own hand it is spelled Bolles. But copyists, recording officers, and other persons out of the family, spell it capriciously, and in many different ways. The blundering ingenuity of clerks in regard to this name is curiously illustrated by the town records of Ipswich, Mass., and by the Registries of Deeds and of Probate, of Essex County, Mass., in regard to the Ipswich Bolleses, who were somehow related to the family at Wells, Maine. Upon those records and registries the name is variously written as Bouls, Bowls, Bowles, Boals, Bolls,

The DEPOSITION of Joseph Storer, aged seventy-nine years or thereabouts, and Sarah Sayer, aged seventy-eight years or thereabouts, testifieth that they well remember that Mr. Joseph Bolls, the elder, lived on the land that is now the land that Capt. Joseph Hill dwells on, and is in his improvement upward of sixty years ago, and that the s<sup>d</sup>. Bolls died about forty-eight years since, and that his son Joseph Bolls lived on the same tract of land after his decease about six or seven years and then died. And further saith, that the ditches in the marshes as they now stand were made about sixty years since and have always stood as bounds ever since and that it was always accounted that the lots of upland went from the marsh two miles and a half back into the woods and never heard it in the least questioned until very lately. And Mrs. Sarah Sayer further saith that Mr. Joseph Bolls Sen<sup>r</sup>. had his house burnt about seventy years ago or upwards and that she heard it generally spoken of that the Town records were then burnt. DEPOSITION, 1733, XIV. Esther Roberts of Boston aged about sixty four years, Testifieth and saith that she very well knew Mr. William Dyer of Shipscot, father of s<sup>d</sup>. Christopher and John Dyer and Mary Dyer who married to Samuel Bowles. Said Christopher was s<sup>d</sup>. William's eldest son and had by his first wife two sons William and John and one daughter called Grace, who intermarried with one Allicet: The first mentioned William Dyer lived on a neck of land that was known by the name of Dyer's Neck, and had there a house, a field, orchard, garden and cattle, and at the same time there lived on y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> neck at a little distance from him his second son John Dyer. The s<sup>d</sup>. William Dyer was mending his garden or orchard fence when the Indians came and knocked him down, which I saw, and they killed and scalped him and wounded greivously his second son John Dyer, but he recovered of his wounds. Christopher Dyer was kill'd by the Indians a few months afterwards, which I also well remember. The above William and Christopher Dyer were killed upwards of forty years ago.

CHAPTER I. SECTION II.

THOMAS BOLLES, 1644—1727.

THOMAS BOLLES, who, as we have seen, was the second child and first-born son of Joseph Bolles, Esq., of Wells, Me., born Dec. 1, 1644, was induced by John Winthrop, Governor of Connecticut, to remove from Wells to New London, Conn., soon after he reached manhood. He first settled in the "town plot," but in 1668 he bought a house and land on what was then called "Foxen's Hill," afterwards, and to this day, known as "Bolles's Hill," a most beautiful slope just north of the present city of New London. It is difficult to find a lovelier landscape than that which greets the eye from this charming elevation; and nothing can be pleasanter to the eye of the traveller than the graceful ascent from the banks of the Thames of the waving woods and fertile fields of Bolles's Hill.

Gov. Winthrop gave Mr. Bolles a number of young apple trees which he had imported from England, and from those trees my father (Rev. Matthew Bolles) the great-great-grandson of Thomas Bolles gathered fruit. Mr. Bolles purchased a portion of Bolles's Hill from Owaneco, son of Uncas, and Sachem of the Mohican Indians. Mr. William Bolles (who descends from Thomas, through John, Joshua, and Hæzekiah Bolles) now living on part of this ancestral hill, has Owaneco's receipt for the final payment on account of this purchase, dated Oct. 14, 1693; signed "Owaneco, his marke." The receipt is attested by two witnesses, and certified by "Rich<sup>d</sup> Christophers, Commissioner."

Mr. Bolles, contrary to the tradition entertained by many of his descendants, was married three times: 1st, to Zipporah Wheeler of Groton, Conn., July 1, 1669, by whom he had three children, Mary, Joseph, and John. 2d, to Rebecca, daughter of Matthew Waller of New London, who died without issue, Feb. 10, 1711-12. 3d, to Hopestill, widow of Nathaniel Chappell, by whom he had no child, and who survived him, dying in 1753, aged about 90.—(Miss Caulkins's Hist. of New London; New London Records.) Mr. Bolles died in New London, intestate, May 26, 1727, in his 84th year, and his grave-stone may yet be seen, where I have often visited it, in "the old burial ground." His three children were, Mary, born 1673; Joseph, born 1675; and John, born Aug. 1677.

On the evening of June 6, 1678, Mary and Joseph, with their mother Zipporah, were murdered by a boy named John Stoddard. All the legal records and proceedings in regard to these murders will be found appended hereto. The account of this tragedy given by Miss Caulkins, in her excellent History of New London, is substantially correct. I have seen and collated a contemporaneous record of the transaction in the original Diary of Rev. Simon Bradstreet, of the first parish in New London, from which I copy, verbatim et literatim, some passages: "June 6. About sunset Mr. Thomas Bolles his (Bolles's) wife and two children were murdered here in New London by an Indian or Indians." "But sometime after this God was pleased very strangely to discover the murderer who was a young lad named John Stoddard." . . . "one who has been a rebellious and disobedient wretch to his parents al his dayes, &c." "The first cause of suspecting him was his attempting to murder his brother in law, about a year old, or something better. He gave him two or three blows with an axe, and, as he thought, left him dead, informing the neighbors that some Indians had done it; but upon examination ownd and confest the fact, also the other murders."

The Indian first suspected of the Bolles murders was Kesuckquanch, a Mohican, who had been at Mr. Bolles's house just before the murder. The record of his examination, and those of Keweebhunt, Nucquittaty and his Squaw, who first discovered the crime, are preserved in the office of the Secretary of State of Connecticut. I have carefully studied the originals, and also the examination, confession, indictment, &c., of young Stoddard, the real murderer, some of which in part, and some of which in full, I subjoin hereto. Stoddard in his confession says that he came to Mr. Bolles's house that evening (June 6, 1678) his mother and step-father living near by,—asked Mrs. Bolles for a night's lodging, and was refused. "Then he owneth," says the confession, "that he drew the latch and came into the house, and took an axe that stood by the wall, and strooke the said Mrs. Bowles on the head (as she satt on the stoole neere y<sup>e</sup> Bedde's feete, with the child in her lap,) with which blow she fell on the flore, (by some venyson that lay there). Then he strooke her another blow on the head; then he strooke the girl on the head as she stood by the dore, and then strooke the little boy on the head, &c." . . . "when he went from the house to the highway homewards."

Keweebhunt, Nucquittaty and his squaw, state that they came to the house just after dark, and found Mrs. Bolles and one child dead on the floor, and the other child wounded and gasping on the threshold. They hurried into town to give the alarm.

At the Hartford Court, October, 1678, Stoddard was indicted, tried and convicted of the murder of Mrs. Bolles and her two children. He was sentenced to death, and was hung "on the 9th day of October, after the lecture."

Mr. Bolles was much employed in town affairs, and for nearly twenty years was in the Commission of the Peace.—(Caulkins, 368-9.) He was of the "standing order" in religion, and educated John, his only surviving child, "in the Presbyterian way."—(See John Bolles's "True Liberty of Conscience, &c." p. 25.) In 1673, a considerable bequest was made to New London by Robert Bartlett, for the education of children. The first Bartlett Committee chosen by the town to manage this property was elected in 1698, and Mr. Bolles was first on the list.—(Caulkins, 397-8.)

Mr. Bolles's house stood a little south of the stone house now (or recently) owned by Mr. Lyman Allen. A couple of miles north of that spot is Bolles's Cove, opening into the Thames. In the Patent of New London, sanctioned by the Governor and Council, Oct. 14, 1704, Thomas Bolles is named as one of the grantees of land conveyed "by certain Acts and Grants passed in General Assembly."

Mr. Bolles, as I have said, died without will, in 1727, and his son John, sole survivor of the Stoddard murder, inherited his property and name. In signing his name Mr. Thomas Bolles, like his father Joseph, always spelled it Bolles, and so it is inscribed upon his grave-stone.

I now complete this Section by presenting some documents which contain true records, and others which present imperfect traditions and recollections, concerning matters connected with Thomas Bolles. The following letter is from the office of the Secretary of State of Connecticut:—

JOSEPH BOLLES, 1608—1678.

THOMAS BOLLES, 1644—1727.

OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE, Hartford, 30th May, 1851.

JOHN A. BOLLES, Esq. Dear Sir: In compliance with your direction I have prepared and herewith send to you an office copy of the Record in Stodder's (Stodder's or Stoddard's) case. Since receiving your letter, I have made further search of the files of the early Courts, and find several depositions and examinations made in this case. It appears that suspicion of the murders first rested on Suckquanch and Keweebhunt, two Mohegan Indians, who were proved to have been at Mr. Bowles's house not long before the murder of his wife and children. These Indians were arrested and imprisoned. Subsequently the murder of a brother of this John Stodder, and the suspicion attaching to the latter of being the perpetrator of the crime, led the authorities to suspect his participation in the murder of Mrs. Bowles. On being examined, he confessed the crime. The files contain the examination of Kesuckquanch (or Suckquanch) and Keweebhunt; the testimony of Nucquittaty (a Mohegan) and his squaw, who were the first to discover the bodies of Mrs. B. and the children, on visiting the house of Thomas B. on the evening after the murder, (June 6, 1678); the examination of John Stodder, himself—aged about 16 years—in which he confesses having committed the several crimes laid to his charge; two subsequent examinations, touching points not sufficiently explained in his first; a "Certificate concerning John Stodder's wicked course," from three persons who had known him "from his beginning,"—"that he had alwayes bin a most terrible wicked boy, very much indicted to curse and sware bitter oathes and likewise to lie and steale," &c.; and finally, a formal confession made by Stodder before Edw<sup>d</sup> Palmes and James Avery, Comm<sup>rs</sup>. at New London, from which I extract all that relates to the murder of the Bowles family.

"The aboves<sup>d</sup> John Stodder being examined about the death of Mrs. Bowles and her children, did strongly deny to Mr. Bradstreet that hee ever was in the house, but now doth freely owne that hee is the person which did the murder, declaring that he came that evening with an intent to lodge there; but Mrs. Bowles denied him liberty to lodge there and thrust him out of doores, strickeing him wth her hand. Then hee the said Stodder owneth that he drew the latch and came into the house, and tooke an Axe that stood by the wall, and strooke the said Mrs. Bowles on the head (as shee satt on the stoole neere y<sup>e</sup> Bedd's feete, with the child in her lap) with which blow shee fell on the flore (by som venyson that lay there). Then hee strooke her another blow on the head. Then hee strooke y<sup>e</sup> girle on the head, as she stood by the dore, and then strooke y<sup>e</sup> little boy on the head, with which blow the axe glanced and cutt the boye's face. Hee also ownes that the Girle groaned or snored when hee went from the house to the highway homewards. For farther tryall, wee caused the ax which the murder was don with, to be brought before him, with two others with it, and hee y<sup>e</sup> said Stodder redily owned the right ax to bee that which hee did the murder with. This is a true Declaration taken from the said Stodder's owne mouth. pr vs EDWD PALMES, JAMES AVERY Com<sup>rs</sup>."

The criminal's name is variously spelled Stodder, Stoder, Stodder, &c., and is doubtless the same now written Stoddard.

Very respectfully,

Your Obedt. Servt.,

J. HAMMOND TRUMBULL, Clerk,

For J. P. C. MATHER, Secretary of State.

I have myself taken notes of the examinations of Kesuckquanch and others, from the files in the Secretary's office, and they are as follows:

1. EXAMINATION OF KESUCKQUANCH. "I had been hunting that day—left my gun at Wheeler's—called at Mr. Bolles's and demanded a pint of liquor, which Keweebhunt said Mr. B. would give me if I went there. Mrs. B. replied she had no liquor in the house, neither did she use to sell liquors. Then went to Thos. Williams's house and sold him a quarter of Venison for a quart of rum. As I came back, met Keweebhunt about sunset or a little after, half way between Thos. W.'s and Mr. B.'s house—ran all the way to town—saw no Indians till I came into town to the Company between Mr. Wheeler's and Mr. Lattimore's. They gave me food. When I was done eating, the alarm was given that Mrs. B. and her children were killed." When first seized in the night, Kesuckquanch said, "What is the matter you lay hold of me? Is Thos. Bolles's wife and children dead?" Being asked why he so said, he gave no reason. Being asked whether he did not know who killed the woman and children, he answered he "did not certainly know, but the old man might do it." Mr. Bolles was absent from home at the time of the murders. He was then in his 34th year. Could Kesuckquanch have referred to him as "the old man?"

2. EXAMINATION OF KEWEEBHUNT. "I killed a deer—brought part of it to one Perce's for whom two Indians were making a hedge—sun 2½ hours high. Was at Bolles's, sun half an hour high, with three parts of deer—left a half with her—she and her children were then well; then went with the other quarter to Thos. Williams's; on the way met Kesuckquanch coming in the path toward Bolles's house; sold my venison, and went with Nucquittaty and his squaw to Mr. Bolles's near dark—found the door open—went in—found a child making a noise like snoring on the floor—thought it was asleep—tried to wake it—could not; went to the fire—stirred up the fire, and made a light—then saw that the child was wounded and gasping, and Mrs. Bolles with another child lay dead on the floor; on which sight I stood trembling and knew not what to do. Nucquittaty said "for my part I will go to town, and inform what I find." (This examination was before Major Treat.)

3. EXAMINATION OF NUCQUITATY. June 7th, declared that yesterday he and his squaw were at Thos. Williams's. About sunset, or a little after, Kesuckquanch came there with a quarter of venison, and sold it for a quart of rum. K. went away with the rum; said he would go to town. I saw no weapon. A while afterwards, Keweebhunt came with venison to W.'s and sold it for rum to Thos. Jones's wife. It being night, the people hastened me and my wife away. Coming towards the town Keweebhunt said he wo<sup>d</sup> call at his friend Mr. Bolles's house—and they all went together—found door open—and a child wounded and gasping, lying down on the threshold—it was dark—I called to Keweebhunt to make a light—I went not into the house. The light being made, saw Mrs. B. and one child killed, and one child wounded and gasping. My squaw was afraid and desired me to get away—I answered I would go and inform authority thereof. We all came towards town—heard guns—squaw afraid, and said go not in the path lest you be killed—left the path with squaw, but Keweebhunt said he would keep on in it and inform. Being asked who he thought committed the murder, he answered he thought it was Kesuckquanch. (This examination was before John Talcott, Assistant.)

THOMAS BOLLES, 1644—1727.

4. EXAMINATION OF CHACKASIJMAS. "Sucquuns" (Kesuckquanch) "coming into a wigwam belonging to Owaneco's fort, and speaking concerning the surrenderers that he had heard that they should be carried out of the country, 'but,' said he, 'for my part I am a lusty man, and before I'll be carried away I'll do some mischief; the houses in New London stand thin and scattering, and I'll spoil one family before I go.'" Sucquuns denied saying this last part. Keweebhunt said he heard Sucquuns say he had helped eat some English flesh.

5. EXAMINATION OF DEBORAH HEBBINS, a girl of thirteen. She said she saw John Stoddard pass her father's house about, or a little after, sundown. Mr. Lockwood and her father were then talking together. Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Bolles met at the bridge after the boy Stoddard passed Hebbins's house.

"The bridge" was between New London "town plot" and Bolles's Hill, about a quarter of a mile from Mr. Bolles's house. I now affix copies of the indictments, &c., in the case of the boy John Stoddard. It will be observed that although he had repeatedly confessed the murders he now pleaded not guilty:

The Bills of presentment against John Stother were by the Grand Jury found Billa Vera.

John Stother, thou art here indicted by the name of John Stother of New London, that not haueing the feare of God before thine eyes, thou hast most wickedly and maliciously risen up against Zipporah Bowles, the wife of Thomas Bowles, and smitten her with an axe, an instrument of death, and thereby taken away the life of one of his Mat<sup>ies</sup> subjects, for which according to the lawe of God and the law of this Colony (which hath been sufficiently published) thou deseruest to dye. The Jury return they finde the prisoner Guilty according to the Indictment.

John Stother thou art in like manner indicted by the name of John Stother of New London, that not haueing the fear of God before thine eyes thou hast wickedly and maliciously risen up against Mary Bowles of New London and smitten her with an axe an instrument of death, and thereby taken away the life of one of his Mat<sup>ies</sup> Subjects, for which, according to the law of God and the established lawe of this Colony, (which hath been sufficiently published) thou deseruest to dye. The facts which I have stated in regard to Mr. Thomas Bolles are matters of public record, and of their accuracy there can be no doubt. I now copy a statement made to my uncle, the venerable Rev. Augustus Bolles of Colchester, Conn., by a grandson of Thomas Bolles, at the age of 89, when his memory seemed clear and exact. My uncle wrote it down verbatim, and gave it to me some years afterwards. It is a curious mixture of truth and error. The erroneous statements are those printed in italics. The narrator was Mr. Samuel Bolles, the 14th child of John Bolles, the infant son of Thomas referred to in the Statement. Mr. Samuel Bolles, as will appear hereafter, was born when John Bolles his father was a very old man, and his statement as to the murder was made more than one hundred and sixty years after the crime was committed. He lived to be almost 99 years old, and was known to the Bolleses of New London as "Sam uncle."

STATEMENT OF SAMUEL BOLLES, TO REV. AUGUSTUS BOLLES.

"There came three brothers from England, in what year is not known. They landed below Boston; not known at what place; but soon found their way to Boston, where one died without issue. One settled at Wells, in Maine, and the other, Mr. Thomas Bolles, came to settle in New London, at the solicitation of Mr. Winthrop, at that time Governor of Connecticut, who gave him ten young apple trees, which Mr. Bolles set out near what is now the northeast part of the city. They were pearmaines. Mr. Thomas Bolles married a Miss Wheeler of Stonington, by whom he had three children, Joseph, Mary, and John. He dwelt one mile north of the city, on the east side of the road to Norwich, in a log house built adjoining a large flat rock, which still remains to mark to posterity the fatal spot."

["This flat rock was shown me by my grandfather, Enoch Bolles, whose house was near to it. It was, a few years since, broken up to build wall. AUGUSTUS BOLLES, May 5, 1851."]

"John Bolles aforesaid was born in 1676, late in August or early in September, and when nine months old was the only one of the three children who survived the murder of his mother, brother and sister, and was found rolling in his mother's blood. Her husband being gone to the city, and she with the children alone, a boy 16 years old, named Stoddard, whose father lived at what is yet called Stoddard's Neck, on the Thames, a mile and a half north of Mr. Bolles, came to her house, and, it is said, asked for the loan of some article, axe, or something that was refused. He was expostulated with by Mrs. B. for his dishonesty in pilfering small articles, when he became enraged, went to the woodpile took up the axe and came to the door where Mrs. B. was sitting, with John in her lap, combing her hair, and killed her by striking the axe into her head. He then killed Joseph and Mary, who were playing on a rock adjoining the house, and left them there, sparing only the infant John. Mr. B. found his family in this condition, and was himself first examined; then an Indian was arrested, taken to Hartford, tried once and again, and finally acquitted. One year and a half after the murder Stoddard was left at home by his parents to take care of his little brother while they went over the river to sell cakes at an Indian Pow-wow, at Groton. To get rid of the care, Stoddard killed the child, (or thought he had,) and then set off for town to give the alarm that Indians had killed his brother. He met two men on the way, one of whom went with him to the house, the other to the town. The result was, he was charged with the murder, and confessed it. He was then charged with the murder of Mrs. Bolles and confessed the whole, and was tried and executed at Hartford. Mr. Thomas Bolles, thus bereaved, never married after! He was a magistrate, and died respected at 84 years of age. John was put to nurse at an Aunt Bennett's, and afterwards at Norwich."

Such is the Statement of Mr. Samuel Bolles, who must often have seen his step-grandmother, the third Mrs. Thos. Bolles, when he was a boy of three to nine years old; and who must also have seen and read the family record of his father John, (which his, Mr. S. B.'s grand-daughter gave me,) in which, in the writing of John it appears that Mrs. Bolles was killed June 6, 1678, and that John was "41 years of age in Aug. 1718," and must therefore have been born in Aug. 1677, and not in "Aug. or Sept. 1676." Several of "Sam Uncle's" mistakes have been perpetuated in the memories, and even in the family genealogical records, of many of John Bolles's posterity. My uncles, Judge David Bolles, and Rev. Augustus Bolles, and my father, Rev. Matthew Bolles, were thus misled, and by their several records have unintentionally misled others.

CHAPTER I. SECTION III.

JOHN BOLLES, 1667—1767.

JOHN BOLLES, third and only surviving child of Thomas and Zipporah Bolles, was born in New London, Conn., August, 1677, and died there in his 90th year, January 7, 1767. His Will bears date June 21, 1763. He was twice married, viz.: 1st, to Sarah Edgecombe, dau. of John Edgecombe of New London, Conn., and grand-dau. of Nicholas Edgecombe of Plymouth, England, July 3, 1699, by whom he had ten children; 2d, to Elizabeth Wood of Groton, Conn., by whom he had four children.

These fourteen children were all born in New London, and were—1. Joseph, born March 1, 1701; died July, 1785; Sect. IV. 2. John, b. Oct. 22, 1702; d. 1777; Sect. V. 3. Thomas, b. June 12, 1704; d. 1795; Sect. VI. 4. Samuel, b. April 22, 1707; d. 1735; Sect. VII. 5. Ebenezer, b. July 12, 1708; d. June 24, 1762; Sect. VIII. 6. Patience, b. Nov. 26, 1709; d.; Sect. IX. 7. Zipporah, b. Oct. 6, 1711; d. 1793; Sect. X. 8. Isaiah, b. Oct. 11, 1713; d. Jan. 28, 1789; Sect. XI. 9. Enoch, b. Oct. 20, 1715; d. Dec. 3, 1800; Sect. XII. 10. Joshua, b. Aug. 5, 1717; d. 1800; Sect. XIII. 11. Mary, b. April 11, 1737; Sect. XIV. 12. Christiana, b. March 5, 1738; d. 1782; Sect. XV. 13. Elizabeth, b. March 5, 1742; Sect. XVI. 14. Samuel, b. May 10, 1744; d. Aug. 10, 1842; Sect. XVII.

I have his autograph family record, containing the names of the first eleven of these children, his own age, and the following entry: "My Mother was murdered the sixth day of the fourth" (month) "1678." At the age of thirty he became dissatisfied with the tenets of the Presbyterian Church, in which he had been educated. That church was the only one recognized by law. Its members composed "the standing order," and from the foundation of the Colony until the adoption of a State Constitution and the principle of religious toleration in 1818, every person in Connecticut, whatever his creed, was compelled by law to belong to, or pay taxes for the support of "the standing order." It was as complete an "Establishment" as is the "Established Church of England." Mr. Bolles became a Seventh-day Baptist, and was immersed by John Rogers, the elder. Well educated, familiar with the Bible, independent in fortune, earnest in his convictions, and of a proselyting spirit, bold and fond of discussion, Mr. Bolles engaged very actively in polemical controversy, and wrote and published many books and pamphlets, some of which yet extant prove him to have been, as Miss Caulkins, the historian of New London, describes him, "fluent with the pen and adroit in argument."

THOMAS BOLLES, 1644—1727.

JOHN BOLLES, 1677—1767.

From one of his "books" in my possession it appears that his escape when his mother and her two other children were murdered by Stoddard, and his deliverance from other imminent perils, "When," to use his own words, "there was but a hair's breadth between me and death," made a deep impression on his mind, and made him feel that God had spared him for some special work. This belief is expressed in some homely verses, Bunyan-like in sound, which his grand daughter, Mrs. Berg, (dau. of Enoch Bolles,) quoted to me in 1861, from one of his "books," whose title she could not remember:—

"Kind reader, here I offer thee a book,
Desiring thee therein in love to look;
'Tis for no wisdom, nor no college phrase
That I bestow this book, thereby to praise.
I formerly did lose a tender mother;
I also had a sister and a brother;
My mother she was murdered with the rest,
And I, a babe, found sucking at her breast:
Yet was my life preserved by God's Almighty hand,
Who since has called me forth for his great truth to stand."

Under the spur of this conviction he devoted himself to the great cause of religious freedom, encountering opposition and persecution, and suffering fines, imprisonments and beating with many stripes. I have before me a copy of the record of proceedings in July, 1725, before Joseph Backus, Esq., a magistrate of Norwich, Conn., against Andrew Davis, John Bolles, and his son, Joseph Bolles, (a young man of 25 years,) John Rogers, (the younger,) Sarah Culver and others, charged with Sabbath-breaking; by which it appears that for going on Sunday from Groton and New London to attend Baptist worship in Lebanon, they were arrested on Sunday, imprisoned till the next day and then heavily fined, the sentence being that if fine and costs were not paid, they should be flogged on the bare back for non-payment of fine, and then lie in jail till payment of costs. As none of them would pay, they were all flogged, the woman as well as the men—John Bolles receiving fifteen stripes—and each of the others ten. According to the statement of one of the sufferers, Mary Mann of Lebanon wished to be immersed, and applied to John Rogers, (the younger,) and his Society for baptism. Notice was publicly posted some weeks beforehand that on a certain Monday, July 26, 1725, she would be baptized and that a religious meeting would be held in Lebanon on Sunday, July 25, "the day" (says Rogers) "on which we usually meet, as well as the rest of our Neighbors." When the Sunday came, a company of Baptists, men and women, from Groton and New London, set out for Lebanon by the county road which led through Norwich. The passage through Norwich was so timed as not to interfere with the hours of public worship. After they had passed through the village they were pursued and stopped, brought back to Norwich, imprisoned until Monday, and then tried, convicted and sentenced for Sabbath-breaking. It must be added that the woman who was thus stripped and flogged was pregnant at the time, and that the magistrate who ordered the whipping stood by and witnessed the execution of his sentence. This outrage was much talked of throughout New England, and led to the publication of divers proclamations and pamphlets. Deputy Governor Jenks of Rhode Island, the following January, having obtained a copy of the proceedings against Davis, ordered it to be publicly posted in Providence to show the people of Rhode Island "what may be expected from a Presbyterian Government," and appended to it an indignant official proclamation. I copy the entire handbill:—

"Here followeth a Copy of a Record of the proceedings of a Justice's Court, held in Norwich in July last, with one of John Rogers his" (Rogers's) "brethren, who, together with him and several others, I am informed were going on the First Day of the Week from New London and Groton to a religious meeting at Lebanon, in order to Baptise, or see a person Baptised, &c., and were all apprehended as Malefactors and unmercifully whipped.

"Norwich July 26, 1725.

"At an inferior Court, present Joseph Backus, Justice of the Peace, for the County of New London, Andrew Davis of Groton being brought before this Court, upon the presentment of the King's officer, for his transgression of law in Norwich, by travelling upon the Sabbath, or Lord's day, being the 25th instant, and the said Andrew acknowledging that he did travel from Groton to Norwich, and was going to Lebanon on said day. This Court have considered the case, and do sentence the said Andrew Davis to pay twenty shillings, as a fine for his transgression, for the use of the poor of this town, or upon his refusing to pay the same, or to tender estate to answer Execution, then to be whipped ten stripes on the naked body, not exceeding, and to pay the charge of prosecution, and to stand committed till this be performed; said Davis refusing to pay his fine received the stripes and was committed for the charges. Costs allowed is 00.18.07. A true copy, Test. JOSEPH BACKUS, Justice of the Peace. A true copy of the aforesaid copy. Test. JOSEPH JENKS, Dep. Governor."

"I order this to be set up in open view in some public place in the town of Providence, that the inhabitants may see and be sensible of what may be expected from a Presbyterian government, in case they should once get the rule over us. Their ministers are creeping in amongst us with adulations pretence, and declare their great abhorrence to their forefathers' sanguinary proceedings with the Quakers, Baptists, and others. I am unwilling to apply Prov. xxvi. 25, to any of them, but we have a specimen of what has lately been acted in a Presbyterian government, which I think may suppose it sits a Queen, and shall see no sorrow. I may fairly say of some of the Presbyterian Rulers and Papists, as Jacob once said of two of his sons, Gen. xlix. 5, 6, verses, 'They are Brethren; instruments of cruelty are in their habitations. O my soul, come not thou into their secret! Unto their assembly, mine Honor, be not thou united!' Amos, v. and 7, 'They who turn judgment into wormwood, and leave off righteousness in the earth; Chap. vi. and 12, 'For they have turned judgment into gall and the fruit of righteousness into hemlock!' And I think in whomsoever the spirit of persecution resteth there cannot be much of the spirit of God. And I must observe that notwithstanding the Presbyterian pretended zeal to a strict observance of a First day Sabbath was such that those poor people might not be suffered to travel from Groton to Lebanon on that day, on a religious occasion, as hath been minded, but must be apprehended as gross malefactors, and unmercifully punished, yet when a Presbyterian minister which hath a great fame for abilities, hath been to preach in the town of Providence, why truly then the Presbyterians have come flocking in upon the first day of the Week to hear him from Rehoboth, and the furthest parts of Attleborough, and from Killingly, which is much further than John Rogers and his friends were travelling, and this may pass for a Godly zeal; but the other must be punished for a sinful action. Oh, the partiality of such nominal Christians!

Mr. Justice Backus, in a pamphlet of 32 pp., endeavored, quite unsuccessfully, to justify or palliate his cruelty, and was answered by Rogers with becoming severity. As I read these several documents I am constrained to wonder that such outrages could have been either inflicted or endured. There seems to be a sort of poetical justice in the fact that Justice Backus's grandson, a child of eighteen months at the date of this flogging, became himself a Baptist preacher, and the historian of the Baptists.

Mr. Bolles suffered many other hardships at the hand of the law, some of which he has commemorated in his "books." I have a volume containing three of his productions, viz.: 1. "A Message to the General Court at Boston, May, 1754." 2. A tract entitled (in part) "True liberty of Conscience is in bondage to no flesh, &c." 3. A "Reply to Jacob Johnson's Answer to my booke, &c., by John Bolles." In one of these he says, "To my knowledge was taken from a man, only for the cost of a Justice's Court, and Court charge of whipping him, for breach of SABBATH, (so called,) a mare worth a hundred pounds, and nothing returned; and this is known by us yet living, to have been the general practice in Connecticut."—"True Liberty," &c., p. 98.) Mr. Bolles, doubtless, was that "man." Another of his "books" in my possession is, "A Brief Account of Persecutions in Boston and Connecticut Governments," (1758). Another, dated from "New London, the eleventh of the seventh month, 1728," (March being then the first month of the year,) is a pamphlet containing John Bolles's Application "to the General Court holden at New Haven the 10th of the 8th month, 1728," informing that honorable body "in all the Honour and submissive obedience that God requires me to show unto you, &c.," that he had examined the Confession of Faith established by them, and found therein "Principles that seem not to be proved by the Scriptures there quoted," and had drawn up some Objections thereto, and "taken a journey for no other end but to deliver them to one of the Elders in each" "County in this Colony of Connecticut," "to be by him delivered to their several Associations, desiring them to peruse them and answer them," &c.; a copy of which Objections is set out in the Application, and requesting the General Court to call a general Association for the consideration of these Objections. In this pamphlet he mentions various instances of cruel persecution to which he and his friends had been subjected. He ends the "book" with these words:—"But we, on our parts, have had the witness of a good Conscience towards God in all our Sufferings, and Loss of all these Things, and do make it our Care to live inoffensively towards all men, except in the case of Daniel, Chap. 6, Verse 5. And whether this be not oppressing and afflicting them that have no Power to help themselves for Conscience sake, let God be judge. Pray peruse what is above written, and let it have a due Sense upon your Minds; and so act and do in all the Particulars above mentioned, as you may have Confidence and Boldness to hold up your Heads before the Great, and Terrible, and Righteous Judge of all the Earth, when he shall come with his mighty Angels in flaming Fire, taking Vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ."

I have another of his "books" called "Good news from a Far Country," whose argument is to prove that the Civil Government "have no Authority from God to Judge in Cases of Conscience;" to which is added "An Answer to an Election Sermon preached by Nathaniel Eells." This double pamphlet was printed at Newport, R. I., 1749. Another of his works in my possession, "printed for Joseph Bolles, 1757," discourses "concerning the Christian Sabbath," and advocates the seventh day tenet. He published many other "books," as he loved to call them; and from 1708 to 1754 hardly a year elapsed without his thus assailing the abuses of the established church, and vindicating the great principle of "soul-liberty." Once a year, as a general rule, he mounted his horse, with saddle bags stuffed full of "books," and rode from County to County challenging discussion, inviting the "Presbyterian Elders" to meet him, man-fashion, in argument, or confess and abandon their errors. "But," says he, in one of his "books," "they disregarded my request." He even made a pilgrimage to Boston, Mass., in 1754, to move the General Court of Massachusetts in this behalf, as he had often endeavored to move the Connecticut Legislature. This last exploit, a horseback ride of 200 miles in his 77th year, may be regarded as a fit climax to a long life of zealous effort in the cause of truth.

From Mr. Bolles's Application to the General Court I copy these passages:—"And as he (John Rogers) saith hitherto, so may we say now, Fathers taken from their Wives and Children, without any Regard to Distance of Place, or Length of Time. Sometimes Fathers and Mothers both taken and kept in Prison, leaving their Fatherless and Motherless Children to go mourning about the streets.

"When a poor man hath had but one Milch Cow for his Families Comfort, it hath been taken away; or when he hath had only a small Beast to kill for his family, it hath been taken from him, to answer a fine for going to a Meeting of our own Society, or to defray the Charges of a cruel Whipping, for going to such a Meeting, or things of this Nature. Yea, twelve or fourteen Pounds' worth of Estate hath been taken to defray the Charges of one such cruel Whipping, without making any Return as the Law directs. And this latter Clause in the Law is seldom attended.

"Yea, Fourscore and odd Sheep have been taken from a Man, being all his Flock; a Team taken from the Plow, with all its Furniture, and led away. But I am not now about giving a particular Account, for it would contain a Book of a large Volume, to relate all that hath been taken from us, and as unreasonable and boundless as these; besides the Cruelties inflicted on our Bodies, and many and long Imprisonments, of which I shall mention one Instance of a Woman when she was condemned by a Judge in a Case of Conscience: Because she stopped her Ears, and would not hearken to his Sentence, as not belonging to him to judge in such Cases, but with a cheerful Spirit sang Praises to God, and then turned to the Judge and said, That if he went on persecuting God's People, God's Judgments would come upon him or his. Whereupon said Judge condemned her to Prison, where, after further Determination, she was required to remain till she should pay the Charge of her Prosecution, so called, and there continued six Months, till God made way by moving the Hearts of the People with Compassion for her Deliverance, by seeing her Affliction; She being not only locked up in Prison, but also a high boarded Yard round the Prison, locked also, and the Prison-Keeper living near half a mile from the Prison, it being an extream cold Winter, and in the Height of it, she miscarried, being without any Help, nor could call for any, her Husband living about a mile and a half from the Prison, and was not suffered to come to her; As if God suffered such Things to be done, to lay Conviction before all Faces. But after her Release, she was carried home on her Bed in a Cart, and after some Time she was, thro' God's Goodness restored to Health again."—(Pp. 14-17.)

My edition of Mr. Bolles's "True Liberty of Conscience" has lost its title page, but from many passages therein it is manifest that the date must be later than 1756. At p. 103, he refers to his having gone "to the General Court at Hartford, and also to the General Court at Boston," "in the year 1754;" and says, "I have published three treatises already, touching these things; but there has been no answer made to any; and this is the fourth." I quote also, in full, the passage from this little volume which relates to Mr. Bolles's conversion. He says, p. 25, "But before I go any further, I think it not amiss to give some account of my own life from my infancy, and of God's dealing towards me; as David saith, Psal. 66, 16. That was his experience of God's goodness towards him. And as to myself, my father lived about a mile out of New London town; and my mother was at home with only three little children, I being the youngest, (about 10 months old,) she with the other two were murdered by a youth about 16 years of age, who was afterwards executed at Hartford; and I was found, (as was said,) at my dead mother's breast. And since in the course of my life God hath preserved me out of many eminent dangers, when there was but a hair's breadth between me and death, which I have a particular remembrance of to this day; and the most of them by water. And I was brought up in the Presbyterian way till I was about thirty years old, and had four or five children, but baptised none; for reading the Scriptures, and as my age gave me understanding to consider what I read, it appeared to me by the Scriptures that we must first believe before we were baptised, and in our baptism we must be buried in water. And now, living to this age in the neglect of baptism, my conscience accused me, so that I read the Scriptures that I might be fully informed what was for me to do. And the more I read them I was confirmed in my first belief, and accordingly was baptised by John Rogers, a Baptist teacher. And now, as I had made a profession thus far, and going on in my Christian progress, I found no command in Scripture for the first day Sabbath; and therefore began to work upon it, not thinking that the civil authority would rise up against me. For tho' I was baptised by said Rogers, and joined in fellowship with that people that had suffered much for conscience sake, by Whipping, imprisoning, and setting in the stocks, and loss of goods, and particularly for working on the first day of the week, yet of late they had not been molested as at the first, though they work't as freely, and openly; but I was soon presented" (by the grand jury) "and brought before the authority, and fined, and then they would let me alone till after three first-days, and then send for me, and fine me, for three days together. And now as the battle grew hotter, God gave me more courage, and I grew stronger and stronger, that what was said of Israel under the oppression of Pharaoh, and the Egyptians, was very lively with me, (Exod. 1, 12,) and also that of the house of Saul and David, (2 Sam., 3, 1,) and so it has proved between me and the Authority, for the consolation that I enjoyed, set me over the loss of my goods," . . . "for God gave me such a cheerful spirit in this warfare, that when I had not the knowledge that the grand-jury man saw me at work on said day, I would inform against myself before witness, till they gave out, and let me plow, and cart, and do whatsoever I have occasion to this day."—(Pp. 25-6-7-8.)

His study of the New Testament convinced him that slavery is unchristian, and he manumitted all his slaves; providing generously for their support, and watching, all his life long, over their welfare. It is no extravagant eulogy to say that John Bolles was a great and a good man; and I deem it alike strange and discreditable to his immediate descendants, that no monument marks his grave and no man knows where he is buried. It is worthy of notice, as indicating the extraordinary vigor and energy of the man and of the constitution which he transmitted to his children, that nearly all of them reached a great old age; that he himself died in his 90th year; that the four last of his fourteen children were born after he was 60 years of age; that Samuel, ("Sam Uncle,") the fourteenth and last, born when the father was 67, attained to almost 99 years; and that Samuel's son John died at the age of 90. It would be difficult to find a more remarkable longevity of four successive generations than this of Thomas, 84; John, 90; Samuel, 99; and John, 90; upwards of 360 years.

To the genealogy of this long-lived race I now proceed, promising to make my notices more brief as I come down nearer to our own times. I close this Section with a fac simile of the signature of John Bolles:—

CHAPTER I. SECTION IV.

JOSEPH BOLLES, 1701—1785.

JOSEPH BOLLES, the first child of John Bolles and Sarah Edgecombe, born in New London, Conn., March 1, 1701, and died there July, 1785, in his 85th year. He was a farmer, and occasionally I find his name as publisher on the title page of his father's and of John Rogers's pamphlets. He was a Rogerine, (Rogerine Baptist, or Quaker,) and like his father suffered persecutions, and rejoiced in them, for conscience's sake. He was one of the number whipped at Norwich in 1725, by order of Justice Backus, for violating the Sabbath by going to a Baptist religious meeting.

His wife's Christian name was Martha, but the family name, and the date of marriage, I cannot ascertain. Indeed, as to the marriage, the public records would contain no evidence, inasmuch as Mr. Joseph Bolles was one of those extreme Rogerines who, regarding marriage as a religious covenant, and not a civil contract, deemed it a sin to conform to the requirements of what he considered as an unjust law. There is a tradition in the family that Governor Saltonstall, (Rev. Gurdon Saltonstall of New London,) who had a high regard for Mr. and Mrs. Bolles, contrived to marry them without their suspecting it. The story has been told of so many that I doubt its authenticity, though it is not improbable, and is too good to be lost. It is said that after Mr. and Mrs. B. had had one or two children, and had been threatened by "Some rude fellows of the baser sort" with prosecution, the Governor one day invited himself to dine with friends Joseph and Martha. As the dinner went on, "Friend Gurdon," in easy conversation, very adroitly led both Mr. and Mrs. B. severally to declare that they had taken each other as man and wife in a life long union, and regarded themselves bound by the marriage covenant before God and man. As Mrs. B. assented to her husband's declaration, with her smiling "Yea, yea," the Governor rose to his feet and spreading out his hands exclaimed, "By virtue of my office as civil magistrate, and as minister of God, I declare you lawful man and wife!" "Ah, friend Gurdon," said Joseph, "thou art a cunning creature!"

Mr. and Mrs. Bolles had five children, viz.: 1. Joseph; 2. Thankful; 3. Sarah; 4. Martha; 5. Zipporah. Thankful married her cousin John.—(See Sect. V.) Sarah, born Dec. 3, 1736; married John Henderson. Martha, born Dec. 31, 1738. Zipporah, born May 9, 1741. Of the three last I have no further knowledge.

JOSEPH BOLLES, 1st son of Joseph Bolles, 1732—.

JOSEPH BOLLES, the first of the above named children of Joseph and Martha Bolles, and their only son, was born in New London, Conn., and there lived and died. I cannot find the date of his marriage, nor that of his, or of his wife's death. They were Rogerine Quakers, and of these dissenters the Established Church and the Civil Authority took little thought, except to persecute, and made little record, except of prosecutions and convictions. He married Deborah Rogers, daughter of Samuel Rogers, and sister of that John Rogers who married his aunt Elizabeth Bolles.—(See Sect. XVI.)

They had ten children, viz.: David, who was deaf and dumb, born 1775; lived in New London, never married, and died in Waterford, Conn., Jan. 17, 1853, aged 78;—Samuel, who never married;—Amy, who m. a Mr. Smith;—Jemima, who m. John Cline;—Sarah, who m. Asa Caulkins;—all of Great Barrington, Mass. Martha;—Anna, who m. a Mr. Langworthy;—and James, Joseph, and Ebenezer, of which last three alone have I been able to get any information except what is above given.

JAMES BOLLES, (son of Joseph and Deborah), dates of birth and death unknown.

JAMES BOLLES, son of Joseph and Deborah Bolles, b. ———, in New London, where he married and died. Of the dates of his, or his wife's birth or death, I find no record. He married Eunice, daughter of Samuel Strickland, Nov. 8, 1777. They had six children, all daughters, viz.:

1. Eunice, who was murdered, as is below stated, born Jan. 1780; d. July 21, 1786.
2. Sarah, born ———; m. Erastus Chappell; d. 1858.
3. Eunice, b. ———; m. Samuel Howard; d. 1859.
4. Nancy, b. 1788; m. Ezra Brown; d. April 7, 1840.
5. Lucretia, b. ———; m. John Beebe.
6. Fanny, b. ———; died in childhood.

EUNICE BOLLES, 1780—6.

EUNICE BOLLES, oldest child of James and Eunice Bolles, was killed July 21, 1786, when only six and a half years old. Miss Caulkins thus states the facts connected with this shocking affair:—

"The murdered child was found about 10 A. M., on the Norwich road, two or three miles from town. She lay under a wall, heavy stones from which had been thrown down upon her body. After a day or two suspicion was directed to the Indian girl—Hannah Oc-cu-ish—a Pequod, less than 13 years old—who lived with a widow woman near by. On examination she confessed the crime. It was a case of cruel and malicious murder, growing out of a dispute that occurred in a strawberry field a few days before. The fierce young savage, nursing her wrath, and watching an opportunity for revenge, at length came upon her victim, on her way to school alone, and after coaxing and alluring her into a wood, fell upon her, and beat her to death. The only alleviating circumstances in this case were the extreme ignorance and youth of the criminal—not at that day of sufficient weight to reprieve from execution. The gallows was erected in the rear of the old "Saltonstall" meeting house (on the hill) near the corner of Granite Street." The execution occurred Dec. 20, 1786.

"The Sermon on the occasion was delivered by Rev. Henry Channing, from Yale College, who was then preaching as a candidate to the First Congregational Society. It was printed at New London, by Timothy Green, 1786, and entitled 'God admonishing his people of their duty as parents and masters.'" (History of New London, 576-7.)

JOSEPH BOLLES, 1759—1827.

JOSEPH BOLLES, one of the children of Joseph and Deborah Bolles, born at New London, Conn., in 1759; m. Betsey Cobb, had nine children, and died in 1827. His wife d. 1847, aged 84. Their children were as follows:

1. Joseph, 1st child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. 1788; m. Lydia Rice, Aug. 10, 1804; and died. He was a trader in New London, Conn. They had two children, viz., 1. Thomas, born 1808; d. single, Dec. 29, 1829. 2. Ellen E., b. —; m. Samuel McClintock, March 1, 1829.
2. Samuel, 2d child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. —; d. —, single.
3. Johnson, 3d child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. —; d. single, aged 26.
4. Betsey, 4th child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. 1790; m. twice, viz., 1st, to Justin Worthy; and 2d, — Carpenter.
5. Patty, 5th child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. 1792; m. Charles Powers; was a widow in Newfield, N. Y., in 1861.
6. Polly, 6th child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. 1798; twin with Lydia; m. Dennis Dewey, Great Barrington, Mass.
7. Lydia, 7th child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. 1798; twin with Polly; m. Solomon Kenney, Canaan, Conn.
8. Sarah, 8th child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. —; m. Stephen Green; lives in Waterford, Conn.; has had six children.
9. Hannah, 9th child of Joseph and Betsey Bolles, b. 1800; m. William Woods of New London; has had seven children; lives in New London.

EBENEZER BOLLES, 1766—1846.

EBENEZER BOLLES, one of the children of Joseph and Deborah Bolles, and the only one whom I have yet to mention, was born in New London, Conn., 1776; m. Polly Cooley Gilbert, dau. of John Gilbert; was a mariner; lived in Montville, Conn., and d. there, 1846. His widow was still living there in 1860. They had eight children, three sons and five daughters, viz., 1. Fanny; 2. Charles; 3. Henry; 4. Jemima; 5. Emeline; 6. Mary Ann; 7. Almira; and 8. Nathan.

The family record of the sailor is imperfect:

Fanny, his oldest child, was born —; m. Gardon Brown of Waterford, and had six children.

Charles Bolles, the second child of Ebenezer and Polly Bolles, b. 1798; m. Mary Ann Gale, Nov. 18, 1822; d. April 6, 1831. He was a trader in New London, Conn., and had four children, viz., Charles, Elizabeth R., William G., and Nathaniel R.

1. Charles Bolles, the first of these four, is an iron-founder in New London; born Feb. 23, 1824; m. Mary M. Destin, March 15, 1848, and has no children.

2. Elizabeth R., the second child of Charles and Mary Ann, born Dec. 6, 1825; m. Gaius P. Pomeroy, Nov. 1848; and has two children, Annie and Addie; Addie was born on board ship, in the sea of Okhotsk.

3. William G. Bolles, third child of Charles and Mary Ann, born Nov. 19, 1827; d. in California, Aug. 1, 1852, single.

4. Nathaniel R. Bolles, fourth child of Charles and Mary Ann, born Nov. 11, 1829; m. Ann E. Geer, July 18, 1854; is an iron-founder in New London; has no children.

He and his brother Charles Bolles are the only lineal descendants of Joseph Bolles, the oldest son of John Bolles and Sarah Edgecombe, bearing the name of Bolles. If they remain childless, the family name of Joseph and Martha Bolles will die with them.

Henry Bolles, third child of Ebenezer and Polly Bolles, b. —, in Rome, N. Y.; d. single.

Jemima Bolles, fourth child of Ebenezer and Polly Bolles, b. —; m. Perez Pratt of Montville, Conn., and had ten children.

An old family record says "on board a hospital ship." Mr. Raymond, an intelligent man of about 70 years old, whose father and uncles served with John Bolles, 4th, describes him, on their authority, as a young man of extraordinary intelligence, information and gallantry, and states that he died a prisoner in the enemy's hands. STEPHEN BOLLES, 1763—1841.

STEPHEN BOLLES, only child of the last above-named Samuel Bolles, was born in New London, Conn., in 1763. His trade was that of saddler. He m. Susan Dunton, Jan. 1, 1787, and removed to Hartford, Conn., where he died, April 1, 1841. She d. July 31, 1849. They had eleven children, viz.: 1. Isaac; 2. Stephen; 3. Susan; 4. Frederick D.; 5. William; 6. Fanny; 7. Edwin; 8. Charles; 9. Mary; 10. Franklin; and 11. Thomas.

Mr. Bolles owned considerable land in the city of New London. In 1786, Union Street was opened through his land, and he himself laid out and opened Masonic Street at the same time. Part of his city land went by the name of "Bolles's Hill," but must not be confounded with Bolles's, sometimes called Quaker, Hill, north of the city, on which our ancestor, Thomas Bolles, settled, as stated in Sect. II. Miss Caulkins, in her History of New London, states that the Congregational Society, abandoning the old Saltonstall meeting-house, began to build a new house in 1785, in a more central and accessible site, on Stephen Bolles's land (Bolles's Hill) having bought a lot of Mr. Bolles, for £75; Mr. Bolles throwing in £25 of this amount as his contribution towards the church.—(Caulkins, 591, 627.) It is remarkable that the first sermon preached in this new church was that occasioned by the murder of little Eunice Bolles, by the Indian girl Hannah Oc-cu-ish, Dec. 20, 1786, as already related in Sect. IV.

The children of Stephen Bolles were born, &c., as follows:

His widow afterwards married Philemon Canfield of Hartford, Conn.

THE ROXBURY BOWLESES.

This intermarriage of Isaac Bolles and Deidamia Bowles is the only instance I know of a marriage connection between these two branches of the old English family of Bolles. By the kindness of J. Wingate Thornton, Esq., of Boston, Mass., I am enabled to give the following genealogical sketch of the Roxbury Bowleses:—

JOHN BOWLES, of England, was a member of the Massachusetts Company and gave them £25, in March, 1629. He was in Roxbury as early as 1640. He was a founder of the Grammar School; Representative; Member of the Artillery Company, 1645; and Elder of the Church. He was thrice married, viz., 1, to Dorothy ———; 2, to Elizabeth Heath, dau. of Elder Isaac Heath of Roxbury; 3, to Widow Sarah Chickering. He had four children, Elizabeth, Isaac, John, Jr., and Mary.

JOHN, JR., was born 1653; grad. at Cambridge, 1671; studied theology and became a minister; m. Nov. 1681, Sarah, gr. dau. of the Apostle Eliot, and of Thomas Willett, first mayor of New York; he was frequently Representative from Roxbury, and in 1690, was Speaker of the House of Representatives; d. 1691, leaving only one child, viz.:

JOHN BOWLES, 3d, who was born March, 1685; grad. at Cambridge, 1702; was a leading citizen of Roxbury, Justice of the Peace, Major, and Representative. He was twice married, viz., 1st, to Lydia Checkley; 2d, to Frances White. He d. March 28, 1737. His children were—Mary, 1709; John; Samuel W., 1715; JOSHUA, 1722; Isaac, 1724.

JOSHUA BOWLES, above-named, b. 1722; d. 1794; m. Mary, dau. of Ralph Hartt of Boston, and became the father of Ralph Hartt Bowles, 1757; of William; and of Samuel Bowles, 1762.

JOSEPH BOLLES, 1608—1678.

THOMAS BOLLES, 1644—1727.

JOHN BOLLES, 1677—1767.

JOHN BOLLES, 1702—1777.

SAMUEL BOLLES, 1730—1766.

STEPHEN BOLLES, 1763—1841.

ISAAC BOLLES, 1787—1814.

SAMUEL BOLLES, 1730—1766.

STEPHEN BOLLES, 1763—1841.

ISAAC BOLLES, 1787—1814.

Capt. RALPH HARTT BOWLES, son of Joshua, b. 1757; Captain in the Revolutionary Army; saw much service; settled, and died in Machias, Me., Sept. 1813; and was the father of the late Stephen Jones Bowles of Roxbury (whose daughter, Elizabeth W., is now wife of J. Wingate Thornton, Esq.) and of Leonard C. Bowles of Boston, publisher.

SAMUEL BOWLES, another son of Joshua, was the father of the late Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican, and grandfather of Samuel Bowles the present editor of that very able paper.

WILLIAM BOWLES, the other son of Joshua, was a master mariner; was with Capt. Gray when he discovered the Columbia River, May 7, 1792. In 1803, while on the North-west coast, defending Capt. Salter and his crew from an attack of the Indians, he was mortally wounded by a poisoned arrow. He was father of JOHN BOWLES of Hartford (b. March 2, 1759) whose dau. Deidamia m. ISAAC BOLLES.

Although the precise point of connection cannot be shown, it is evident that the Bolleses and Bowleses all sprang from one and the same original stock. See ante, INTRODUCTION, "BOLLESES IN ENGLAND."

STEPHEN BOLLES, second child of Stephen and Susan Bolles, born March 23, 1789; died July 29, 1815.

whom I saw in his 90th year, in Montrose, Pa., had outlived the recollection of the first Samuel. He recollected that his grandfather, John, had fourteen children, but could recall only thirteen names. When I reminded him of the other Samuel, his memory revived, and was greatly relieved, and it was very pleasant to hear him exclaim, "Oh, yes, cousin, now I shall die more comfortable."

Mr. Bolles was a wealthy merchant, and a Rogerine Quaker of ultra rigor. Among his other extreme notions was the idea that it was wicked to attempt by the use of medicine to cure disease. This notion cost him his life, for being accidentally poisoned by handling ivy, or other similar substance, he refused all medical treatment, and so died. I state these facts partly on the authority of Hinman's "Puritan Settlers, &c." and partly on the authority of records. His grave-stone I have seen in the "Old Burial Ground," at New London. His grand-dau., Mrs. Taber, had five children, one of whom, Julia, married and survived William Marvin, and is now a resident of New London.

CHAPTER I. SECTION XII.

ENOCH BOLLES, 1715—1800.

ENOCH BOLLES, ninth child of John Bolles and Sarah Edgcombe, was born in New London, Conn., Oct. 20, 1715, where he resided until his death, Dec. 3, 1800. He was a saddler, harness-maker, and farmer, living on Bolles Hill, and devoutly adhering to the tenets of the Rogerine Quakers—in religious matters—though free from all of their offensive and Ishmaelitic peculiarities of conduct. He inherited none of the proselyting zeal of John Bolles, his father, but was an example of a peace-loving, quiet, exemplary christian. He was twice married, 1st to Hannah Moore, Nov. 2, 1738, by whom he had ten children, and who died March 18, 1765; and 2d, to widow Lucy Wheeler, daughter of Charles Thompson, who bore him four children, all girls, survived him, and died March 21, 1812. I have his autograph family record. One of his sons became a Baptist clergyman, one of them a Methodist class leader, and four of them Baptist deacons. As already stated, Mr. Bolles's first wife was Hannah Moore. Her two nieces, Margaret Moore and Susannah Moore, married, the one Samuel Bolles, Enoch's brother, and the other David Bolles, Enoch's son, so that the children of David Bolles were doubly indebted to the Moore blood. The Moores were a remarkably long-lived race, and were distinguished by extraordinary vigor of both body and mind.

DEACON JOHN BOLLES, 1752—1830.

7. JOHN BOLLES, seventh child of Enoch, born in New London, Feb. 3, 1752; lived and died in Hartford, Conn.; merchant; for many years Deacon of First Baptist Church; a man of singular goodness, piety, and usefulness. He m. twice, 1st, Lydia Taber of New London, by whom he had nine children, and who d. June 19, 1816; and 2d, Lydia Ann Francis of Newinton, Conn. He d. March 19, 1830.

I will quote a few interesting passages concerning Deacon John Bolles, from Dr. Turnbull's "MEMORIALS OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH, HARTFORD, CONN.," which were read by Dr. T. as sermons after the dedication of the new church edifice, May, 1856:

"There was no man, perhaps, to whom our church, in the early period of its history was more indebted than JOHN BOLLES. He was every way a remarkable man; not, indeed, that he possessed extraordinary powers of mind, or was fitted, by any splendid acquirement, to attract the admiration of the world; but he exhibited a rare combination of Christian gifts and graces. He was a Nathanael indeed, in whom there was no guile. And yet, shrewd beyond most men, he never failed to command the respect of his acquaintances. Everybody loved him. Decided in his principles, his soul overflowed with love and charity. Easy, nimble, cheerful, he was ready to every good word and work. He lived for others. The young, especially, loved him. The aged, and above all, the poor, hailed him as their friend. He was perpetually devising something for the benefit of the church, or the good of souls.

How or when he was converted, he could not tell. His parents were pious, and had brought him up in the fear of God, and in early life, he had given his heart to Christ; but all he could say about it was that God had been gracious to him, and as he hoped, brought him into his fold. On the relation of his experience before the church in Suffield, the brethren, on this very account, hesitated to receive him; but the pastor, Rev. John Hastings, shrewdly remarked, that it was evident that Mr. Bolles was in the way, and that this was more important than the question, when or by what means he got in to it; upon which they unanimously received him. He was very happy in his connection with the church in Suffield. The members were all his friends. He would often start from Hartford at midnight, and arrive in Suffield at early dawn on Sabbath morning, when they were making their fires, and surprise them by his pleasant salutation. After breakfast, and family prayer, all hands would go to church together. Of course, he was equally at home with the church in Hartford, and spent much of his time in visiting, especially the poor of the flock. He had a kind word and a ready hand for every one. One severe winter, a fearful snow storm had raised the roads to a level with the tops of the fences. A certain widow Burnham lived all alone just on the outer edge of East Hartford. The Deacon was anxious about her; he was afraid that she might be covered with the snow, and suffering from want. He proposed to visit her; but his friends thought it perilous to cross the meadows; but being light of foot he resolved to attempt it. The weather was cold and the snow slightly crusted on the top. By means of this he succeeded, with some effort, in reaching the widow's house. As he supposed, he found it covered with snow to the chimneys. He made his way into the house, and found the good sister without fire or water. He cut paths to the wood-pile and to the well, and assisted her to make a fire and put on the tea-kettle. He then cut a path to the pig-pen and supplied the wants of the hungry beast, by which time breakfast was ready. After breakfast, he read the Word of God and prayed, and was ready to start for home. In the meanwhile, the sun had melted the crust of snow, and as he was passing through the meadows, he broke through. He tried to scramble out, but failed. He shouted, but there was no one to hear him. The wind began to blow keenly; and he did not know but that he must remain there all night and perish with cold. But he committed himself to God, and sat down for shelter on the lee-side of his temporary prison. He finally made a desperate effort, succeeded in reaching the edge, and found to his joy, that the freezing wind had hardened the surface of the snow, which enabled him to make his way home.

"On a pleasant Sabbath morning, some seventy years ago, might be seen a little group, wending their way from Hartford, through the green woods and meadows of the Connecticut valley, towards the little church on Zion's Hill. Among them was a man of small stature, something like Zaccheus of old, of erect gait, bright eye and agile movement. Though living eighteen miles from Suffield, he was wont, on pleasant days, to walk the whole distance, beguiling the way with devout meditation; or if some younger brother chose to accompany him, with pleasant talk about the things of the kingdom. This was Deacon John Bolles, brother of Rev. David Bolles, and uncle of the late excellent Rev. Matthew Bolles, and of Dr. Lucius Bolles, so well known in connection with the cause of foreign missions.

DEACON JOHN BOLLES, 1752—1830.

"In the year of our Lord 1790, just about the commencement of the French Revolution, this good brother and a few others came to the conclusion that the time had arrived to organize a Baptist Church in the city of Hartford. Previous to that, they had held meetings in the Court House, and in private houses, and on the fifth of August, 1789, the first baptism, according to our usage, was administered in this city. On September 7th, it was resolved to hold public services on the Sabbath in a more formal way. Accordingly, the first meeting of this kind was held October 18th, in the dwelling house of John Bolles. These services were continued, and in the ensuing season, a number of persons were baptized 'on a profession of their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.' On the 23d of March, 1790, sixteen brethren and sisters were recognized as a Church of Christ, by a regularly called council, over which Elder John Hastings presided as Moderator."

"When the Baptists began to hold public services, an over zealous member of Dr. Strong's Society, (the Centre Congregational Society,) called upon him, and asked him if he knew that 'John Bolles had started an opposition meeting?' 'No,' said he; 'when, where?' 'Why, at the Old Court House.' 'Oh, yes, I know it,' the Doctor carelessly replied; 'but it is not an opposition meeting. They are Baptists, to be sure, but they preach the same doctrine that I do; you had better go and hear them.' 'Go!' said the man, 'I am a Presbyterian!' 'So am I,' rejoined Dr. Strong, 'but that need not prevent us wishing them well. You had better go.' 'No,' said the man, with energy, 'I sha'n't go near them. Dr. Strong, a'n't you going to do something about it?' 'What?' 'Stop it, can't you?' 'My friend,' said the Doctor, seriously, 'John Bolles is a good man, and will surely go to heaven. If you and I get there, we shall meet him, and we had better, therefore, cultivate pleasant acquaintance with him here!'"

The Historian of New London (Caulkins) very properly notices the extraordinary fact that the three lives, of Mr. Bolles, his father John, and grandfather Thomas, covered the whole period from 1644 to 1842, and amounted to an aggregate of more than 271 years. # BOLLES GENEALOGY.

CHAPTER II.

SAMUEL BOLLES, 1646—17—.

I have spent much time, but to little purpose, in my endeavors to compile a tolerably full and accurate genealogy of this junior branch of the Joseph Bolles of Wells Family. Unwilling to throw away even this poor product of my painstaking efforts, I submit it with all its defects to such as care to follow me over a field whose gleanings are so meagre.

SAMUEL BOLLES, third child of Joseph and Mary Bolles of Wells, Me., b. in Wells, March 12, 1646; m. Mary, dau. of William Dyer of Sheepscoot, Me., (New Dartmouth). In 1668, as appears by the town records, the inhabitants of Wells granted him 300 acres of land, on condition that he should "improve the same within a year." He afterwards removed to Rochester, Mass. One of his descendants informs me that "after being three times burnt out in Maine, by the Indians, he moved first to Clark's Island, in Boston Harbor, and next to Rochester, Mass., where he changed lands with Samuel Hammond, and that his house was about two miles north of Mattapoissett Village." He and his wife were living in 1713. In June, 1712, they conveyed to Henry Flint of Cambridge "600 acres of land, situated in New Dartmouth, alias Sheepscoot, commonly known by the name of Dyer's Neck, or Nassacmac, which said neck of land," says the deed, "was formerly granted by ROBIN HOOD, Sagamore of the said Nassacmac, unto William Dyer, father of the said Mary."—(York County Reg. of Deeds, Book 15, page 224). In 1713, they conveyed to Samuel Hammond of Rochester 310 acres of land, "lying in the township of Wells."—(Book 8, page 120.) Dyer and his son, Christopher, were killed and scalped by Indians at Dyer's Neck.—(See affidavits in York Reg., B. 15, p. 228.) Neither record nor tradition gives the dates of Mr. and Mrs. Bolles's death. # INDEX.

This Index contains the names of the Bolles family, and of such other families as have married Bolles wives. I have made but little attempt to trace the issue of such marriages beyond the first generation. Against each name will be found the page in which to seek the family history of that name. On referring to that page the margin will show all the lineal Bolles ancestors as far back as they are known.
